COUNTY WORKERS PICKET FOR HIGHER WAGES

Contract Negotiations With CSEA

County Getting Some Help

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

A labor relations firm will be hired to help the Ulster County Legislature arrive at a fair figure for employee wages under the present 1973-74 contract and for the next two-year contract to be negotiated.

Feeling that it needs professional advice for the purpose of negotiating, the board voted unanimously Thursday night to employ a labor relations firm "within the next couple of weeks," according to Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago. (R Dist. 8)

The move was precipitated in part by the Civil Service Employees Association demands for salary increases totaling nearly a million dollars with individual employee increases of $1,188 a year each.

Knowing wage increases were to be under consideration, county employees, several hundred strong, packed the fifth floor legislative offices and hallways at both the afternoon and evening sessions of the county board, saying nothing, but waiting to see what would happen. After the afternoon session a large contingent of placard carrying employees demonstrated on Fair Street, protesting what they termed poverty wages.

The county employees, many of whom belong to CSEA were also pressured after the meeting by another group representing the Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO, who urged they abandon their CSEA memberships and sign up with SEIU. Sidewalk arguments ensued between members of the two unions with SEIU maintaining it was a stronger union and would better represent the county employees.

Legislators meanwhile stated privately that they generally feel that wages should be increased for county employees in view of the sharp increase in the cost of living during the past couple of years. Just how much of an increase to grant the employees loomed as a large question and they therefore agreed to seek professional advice.

A resolution authorizing the issuance of $111,000 in serial bonds and $6,000 in capital notes was approved in order to pay the cost of improvements to St. George's Park, a 92 acre county property bordering the west shore of the Hudson River just north of the Kingston Rhinecliff Bridge.

The board also authorized Savago to make application for federal funds for improvements to the park including bath houses, septic fields, road and parking surfaces and other improvements.

Unanimous approval was also given to going on record in opposition to the discharge of Sullivan County sewage effluents into the Plattekill River.

It was pointed out that a proposed housing development and existing hotel in Mamakating in Sullivan County anticipated discharging sewage into streams flowing into Ulster County and that residents of the Town of Shawangunk were greatly concerned over the negative impact of this development. Sportsmen's clubs have also expressed concern for the effect it would have on fish life in the Plattekill.

Feeling that the proposed abandonment of certain railroads in Ulster County would have a significant impact on the county because of its habitual high unemployment rate, the legislature agreed to oppose all rail abandonment proposals for the Catskill Mountain and Wallkill Valley branches of the Penn Central Railroad.

It was agreed too that all equipment purchased made by the county in the future be requisitioned through the county purchasing agent.

Dates were set for three public hearings, the first of which was April 29 at 8 p.m. in New Paltz High School, for a hearing on the proposed agricultural district in New Paltz. Gardner and Plattekill and April 30 for the proposed agricultural district in Shawangunk and Gardner (west of the Wallkill River). That hearing will be at 8 p.m. at Wallkill Ambulance Squad Building.

May 1 was set for a hearing on a local law to provide for a partial tax exemption for real property by persons with limited income who are 65 years of age or more. It will be held at 7 p.m. in the County Office Building.

'Powerless' Subpoena Answerable by Apr. 25

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon deliver 41 tapes by 10 a.m. EDT April 25 for use as potential evidence in impeaching him and putting him on trial in the Senate.

The panel's artillery in this new conflict is limited to the moral authority of the House, the weight of public opinion and the message from Republicans manifested in the bipartisan 33-3 vote by which the historic subpoena was approved Thursday.

The subpoena demands that

His refusal to comply could itself become an impeachable offense, and the House is likely to treat it as one.

The White House left open the question of whether Nixon would voluntarily comply with the subpoena.

"We will answer this communication and previous ones from the committee at the end of the Easter vacation (April 22)," Ronald L. Ziegler, presidential press secretary said. "The answer we will give will be comprehensive and conclusive."

But the House committee draws its authority to judge a president's conduct directly from the Constitution and considers itself in a stronger position than were the investigators last summer.

Nixon fired Archibald Cox as special prosecutor rather than comply with a subpoena from him, but subsequently complied as least partially with a subpoena from Leon Jaworski, the current special prosecutor.

A last-minute effort Thursday by James D. St. Clair, Nixon's Watergate lawyer, to avert a subpoena by promising to surrender some but not all of the requested tapes failed.

St. Clair's offer would have given the committee tapes of conversations between Nixon and his aides recorded in February, March and April, 1973 — the period before and after Nixon said he learned of the White House's deep involvement in Watergate. But it would have excluded conversations over five days in mid-April, 1973, involving Nixon and John D. Ehrlichman, Richard G. Kleindienst and Henry E. Petersen.

Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, a leader among committee Republicans, failed to get St. Clair to put the offer in writing, and then dismissed it as "too equivocal and too conditional." That doomed it.

But Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., was able to achieve the near unanimity he sought by accepting without a fight a modification sought by Republicans. It made the subpoena far more specific than the first draft had been. Republicans called that draft a "blanket" subpoena.

Normally Congress enforces its subpoenas two ways. One holds the defiant party in contempt of Congress making him subject to jail for the remainder of the term of the Congress that imprisoned him.

The other asks the Justice Department to initiate court proceedings against the defiant person, making him subject to a fine of up to $1,000 and 12 months imprisonment upon conviction.

'Contrite' Porter 'Learned a Lesson'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert L. "Bart" Porter played a relatively minor role in the Watergate cover-up. But he says he has learned a central lesson: that there are times when a "team player" is morally bound not to follow the team.

For more than a half hour on Maundy Thursday, U.S. District Court Judge William B. Bryant and Charles B. Murray, Porter's lawyer, pondered Porter's contrition.

Murray, a silver-haired white man, told Bryant, a black, that Porter had told "this little white lie" in talking to the FBI a month after the June, 1972, Watergate break-in. Murray said Porter has cooperated fully with the prosecution.

Bryant dropped his head, took off his glasses and sat silently in meditation. He said he "just can't forget" that Porter repeated "the white lie" twice more, before finally telling lawyers for the Committee to Re-elect the President one year ago on April 11, 1973 that he wanted to talk to prosecutors.

Porter told the judge, "I am absolutely positive in my heart all the way down to my toes—that I will never get into trouble again. I have learned a hard lesson, a lesson I intend to recount to my children and anyone else who will listen."

Porter said he intended to go straight back to Laguna Niguel, Calif., his home town, where he helps operate his father-in-law's small construction firm. A year ago, he was the vice president of "a major U.S. corporation," and Porter continually has defined his loss because of Watergate in the materialistic terms of the house and job he lost.

Porter testified in the Senate hearings last June that at the urging of deputy campaign director Jeb Stuart Magruder, who has pleaded guilty to conspiracy, he lied about money he had dispensed to G. Gordon Liddy, later convicted as mastermind of the Watergate break-in.

Porter was indicted on one count of lying, which carried a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

Bryant sentenced him to 5 to 15 months, and ordered him to serve 30 days in a federal correctional institution in California and to go on probation for an additional year.

AF Chief in Dutchess... Defends Military Budget

By TIM SCHUSTER

FISHKILL

The United States Air Force and the industrial leaders of this country have something in common — both have been targets of criticism the past few years as members of the "military-industrial complex."

Secretary of the Air Force John L. McLucas paid a visit on Thursday night, and Dr. McLucas told the Council that the military image in America is changing for the better.

The Secretary took the opportunity to quash any rumors that the Air Force doesn't need as much money just because the war in Vietnam is over.

In his prepared remarks, from which he strayed liberally, Dr. McLucas commented... there is a tendency for people to say the war's over and we don't have to spend so much time thinking about defense and threats to our national interest.

He contended that recent events in the Middle East proved otherwise. "We witnessed an example of how, even though we did not participate in the war, our national interest was involved and it was important for us to be in a high state of readiness," he said.

Among lessons learned in our brief involvement with Israel, he said, our ability to airlift supplies and equipment over long distances was proven.

"I am convinced that a quick deterrence as the 'name of the game,' he is referring to the school education (90 per cent), which he strayed liberally, Dr. States had a great deal to do with moderating the effects of power that has the hardware to force with such skill and a tendency for people to say the war's over and we

a thousand tons of supplies a day, including 50-ton tanks, before addressing the Congress.

The Secretary said the Air Force, and he pointed to Force and the country also some figures to support his contention that defense spending is maintain foreign air bases, by no means out of line.

Defense costs fell from 44 per cent of federal spending in 1963 to an estimated 27 per cent in 1975. The Air Force had about 300,000 people in 1968; it has about 600,000 today. And from a peak of 2,000 new planes a year bought in 1968, the number has dropped to about 200.

He reported that the all-volunteer force has had a positive effect on the Air Force as there are "sufficient volunteers" that we can be very selective.

The Air Force is at an all-time high with respect to the per cent of the force with high school education (90 per cent), and he states, "An all-volunteer strength is certainly one of the most remarkable developments in U.S. military history."

Convicted of Murdering Yablonski

Tony Boyle Will Seek New Trial

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — W. A. "Tony" Boyle's attorney says he will seek a new trial for the former president of the United Mine Workers, convicted of murdering union rival Joseph "Jock" Yablonski.

The jury which returned its verdict Thursday evening also found the ailing 72-year-old Boyle, now serving a three-year federal sentence for misuse of UMW funds, guilty of killing Yablonski's wife and daughter on Dec. 31, 1969.

The convictions carry a mandatory life term. No date was set for sentencing.

Defense lawyer Charles F. we stop.

Moses, claiming the evidence was insufficient, said he would file a motion next week for a new trial.

Special Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague, who charged Boyle had ordered Yablonski killed and then authorized $20,000 in union funds to finance it, said:

"This man used the blood and sweat of miners for killing."

Sprague previously had convicted or obtained guilty pleas from eight others in the Yablonski case.

"Boyle was the originator," Sprague said. "We got back to the beginning and that's where her eyes."

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated 4½ hours before returning a verdict.

Members of the Boyle and Yablonski families were on opposite sides of the hushed courtroom's center aisle when the verdict was read. All had their eyes riveted on the white-faced defendant sitting erect and unmoving in the carved armchair.

Boyle's wife was heard to whisper, "He didn't have anything to do with it." His daughter, Antoinette, held back tears and bit her lips as she rubbed Kenneth and Joseph Yablonski Jr., the two lawyer sons of the slain union leader, clenched and unclenched their fists and scowled.

Kenneth Yablonski, who had found the bodies five days after his parents and sister were slain as they slept in their rural Clarksville home in southwestern Pennsylvania, embraced Sprague.

"You know how happy I am," he said, tears swelling in his eyes.

Boyle left the courtroom escorted by marshals, turning first to wave to his wife and Sprague built his case against Boyle primarily on the testimony of William Turnblazer, a former president of UMW District 19, embracing Kentucky and Tennessee. Turnblazer has pleaded guilty to federal charges of violating Yablonski's civil rights. This carries a life sentence.

Turnblazer said Boyle gave the "kill Yablonski" order at a June 23, 1969, meeting in a hallway of the UMW building in Washington, D.C.

The slayings occurred three weeks after Yablonski lost a bitter battle to unseat Boyle from the job he had held for nearly a decade.

Saxbe Orders Probe On Nixon Tax Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said Thursday he has authorized special prosecutors to proceed with tax investigations involving several Watergate figures and President Nixon's tax lawyer, Frank DeMarco.

Saxbe told newsmen that Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski asked him about a week ago whether his jurisdiction covered tax matters and also DeMarco, the Californian who prepared Nixon's tax returns for 1969 through 1972.

"The question arose as to whether or not Jaworski's jurisdiction extended to those people associated with the tax affair," Saxbe said.

"This was a new area of concern—taxes," he continued. Saxbe said he advised Jaworski that the charter spelling out his responsibilities was broad enough to cover the issue.

Asked specifically whether Jaworski is investigating possible fraud in the preparation of Nixon's returns, Saxbe said he didn't know and didn't ask Jaworski for the reasons for his written question.

A reporter then asked whether Jaworski might have authority to investigate Nixon's tax returns. Saxbe replied, "I think that's basically what he asked, isn't it? Why else did he write me a letter?"

Jaworski "raised the issue of whether his responsibility extended to tax matters" and DeMarco "is one of those raised in the letter as to jurisdiction," the attorney general said.

He also said that Jaworski has asked him several times to request tax return and other information on several Watergate figures from the Internal Revenue Service.

"I authorized Mr. Jaworski and requested on Mr. Jaworski's behalf information on a dozen or 15 who I have not named," Saxbe said he complied each time Jaworski sought such help.

The tax information went directly from the IRS to Jaworski, rather than through the Justice Department, Saxbe said.

He said he doesn't know whether DeMarco is "one whose tax return has been requested and received."

Saxbe said he has no knowledge that Jaworski has investigated Nixon's role in preparing his returns. He said he believes it is up to the House impeachment inquiry to determine whether the President was involved in any tax fraud.

More Testimony Given On Mysterious $100,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — attorney, Herbert W. Kalmbach, has secretly revealed to the Senate committee and the Watergate special prosecutor's office that he was told some of the cash had gone to the President's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and brother, Donald Nixon, for their personal use, funds which would have had to have been replaced before the money was returned.

Maheu, former head of Hughes Nevada operations, has testified that he was involved in delivering the $100,000 to Rebozo.

Maheu testified Thursday, in his $17.3 million libel suit against Hughes, that Senate Watergate committee investigators indicated to him that they suspect the cash returned by Rebozo did not consist of the same bills he received.

Maheu has testified that $50,000 of the cash came from a Hughes personal account in the Bank of America here, and thus might be traceable.

He has testified that the other $50,000 was taken from the cash on hand at the Hughes-owned Silver Slipper Casino in Las Vegas, and presumably there would be no record of the serial numbers available.

Maheu has sued Hughes for saying that Maheu was fired in 1970 because "he stole me blind." Hughes' attorneys are trying to prove that Hughes told the truth and Maheu kept some of the money entrusted to him, including some of the secret political donations he was supposed to make with Hughes' money. Maheu is trying to show that the designated politicians actually took the cash, as proof he did not steal it.

Ellsberg Break-in Trial... Two Years After Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge has set June 17 — two years to the day after the 1972 Watergate burglary — for the beginning of the conspiracy trial of John D. Ehrlichman and five others involved in the Ellsberg break-in.

U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell Thursday said in a brief order the trial date may be changed pending motions by some defendants for separate trials.

Charged in the case with Ehrlichman, President Nixon's former domestic affairs advisor, are Charles Colson, former Special White House Counsel; convicted Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy; and three Cuban Americans, Felipe DeDiego, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio Martinez.

The indictment charges they conspired to violate the civil liberties of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, the Beverly Hills psychiatrist who once treated Dr. Daniel Ellsberg. Ellsberg was the man who made public the "Pentagon Papers" on Vietnam.

The defendants are charged in the White House "plumbers" operation to break into Fielding's office to obtain Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

In other Watergate developments:

—A federal judge said that the perjury trial of Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke of California would begin prior to the June 4 California gubernatorial primary. Judge Barrington Parker said the trial would begin immediately after a May 13 hearing and ruling on a motion to move the trial to California.

Reinecke is a leading Republican contender for governor in the primary.

—Herbert L. "Bart" Porter Jr., who lied to investigators about Watergate out of loyalty to Nixon and to his friends, was sentenced Thursday to 30 days in prison. Porter, who could and a potential conflict of interest existed.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "underground terrorist group," student at the University of California in Berkeley, where he and Miss Hearst lived before she was abducted Feb. 4.

Charles Bates, the FBI agent in charge of the investigation, said, "Either she's been discussed 'quite a bit,' or she will be soon."

Weed, 26, is a philosophy student at the University of California in Berkeley, where he and Miss Hearst lived before she was abducted Feb. 4.

Bates said he would not rule out the possibility Miss Hearst was released in a foreign country.

Miss Hearst's parents, Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, and his wife Catherine, were resting at Las Cruces, south of La Paz, Mexico.

Curtis Florey, 35, black, and son's odor.

He next "saw" this person on Jan. 13, Florey said that on the 15th, the person met him while he was crossing a street. The stranger accompanied him across the street, promising to protect him from dogs in the neighborhood.

Florey testified that he could identify his assailant by his voice, by the texture of his skin and by "a distinctive odor."

He said the stranger first approached him early in January in a restaurant. The man began asking skin texture. He knew he was young because he had thin muscles. He said he could recognize the assailant's distinctive odor.

When Florey refused to part with his few coins, he testified, the man punched him in the head and stomach, snatched his keys, Braille watch and money. Florey said he grappled with his assailant, running his hands over the attacker's body. When asked how he could delineate a man's distinctive odor, Florey replied: "It's like you describing colors to me."

He testified that he could tell from touch that the attacker was a black man because of the continues today.

Legislation May Aid BOCES

By JON POWERS

NEW PALTZ — Legislation introduced by State Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn (R-Cornwall) and Assemblyman Louis Ingrassia (R-Middletown) may help to prevent a severe housing crisis for 16 BOCES units — including Ulster County — in New York State.

The proposed legislation would extend from five to ten years the length of time a BOCES unit can rent a classroom or operational facility. The bill (Assembly 8262 and Senate 7058), which is now being studied in the Rules Committee of the Legislature, would amend Section 1950 of the New York State Education Law.

The State Education Department announced last week that State Education Law allows BOCES units to rent classrooms or buildings for a period not to exceed five years. If the facilities in question are not purchased after the five-year lease runs out, they must be vacated.

That opinion was reaffirmed Wednesday when BOCES officials from 15 units met in Albany with State Education Department attorneys. The BOCES officials were told that — at the end of this year — they must either purchase or vacate facilities that they have rented for more than five years.

According to Jack L. Roosa, the law could have a serious impact on the Ulster County BOCES program. He said that both the Ruzzo Building and the King Building in Kingston would have to be vacated; and that only four classrooms in the Willard Building in Kingston and three classrooms in New Paltz would be available for legal use.

Roosa indicated that, unless legislation is passed this year, the necessary move to other vocational classrooms would be "costly and inconvenient."

He added that the local BOCES Board is determined to continue the vocational education program, even if it means finding other facilities for the classrooms. The component school districts, he said, have made their pupil requests known for 1974-75, and that Ulster BOCES plans to provide the necessary programs to serve the students.

"No high school student should be denied this opportunity to complete his education," Roosa stated.

The BOCES Superintendent asked parents, students, residents and school officials to write their Albany representatives urging support of the Schermerhorn-Ingrassia bill.

In the meantime, the controversial BOCES Bloomingville building proposal is "out," according to Dr. Roosa, because BOCES had intended to rent the facility for two consecutive five-year periods. It could only be continued, apparently, if the lease is rewritten.

PHOENICIA VISITOR — Franklin B. ALLABEN district, Dunn estimated. The State Department of Transportation will be sending an engineer to inspect the Silver Hollow Bridge. Residents claim it is unsafe.

The town board has tentatively set April 17 at 7:30 in the town hall as a public hearing date on zoning and amendments regarding residential and business properties.

Election District No. 1 which had included Phoenicia and Mt. Tremper, has grown beyond the 1,000 person maximum and will be divided into two districts. Mt. Tremper, Mt. Pleasant and the Wittenburg Road will be included in new District No. 4.

A senior citizens delegation was in attendance and asked for raising of the senior citizen tax exemption from $5,000 to $6,000. Supervisor Dunn appointed Councilman Philip Gordon head of a study committee to report back at the next May meeting of the board.

Town attorney Charles Watson and Supervisor Dunn were given permission to attend a public hearing by the Temporary State Commission on State and Local Finances being held at the Ramada Inn on Route 28 or April 18 at 10 a.m. And Supervisor Dunn said there were "quite a few letters" commending the Shandaken families joining the system. "They do will cost those families about $1,000 each to tie into the water recognized," Dunn said.

Legislature Backs State Aid to Nonpublic Schools

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A program to provide $8.2 million in state aid to nonpublic schools had the endorsement today of the New York Legislature, although courts struck down a similar program.

The bill gained Senate approval Thursday and was sent to the governor. The legislature approved the bill last week.

It would reimburse Roman Catholic and other private and parochial schools for the costs of complying with state requirements for pupil testing, program evaluation and record-keeping. These were the objectives of the Mandated Services Act of 1970, which the U.S. Supreme Court saw as an unconstitutional entanglement of church and state.

The court's objections have been solved in the new bill, said Assemblyman Vincent Riccio of Brooklyn, the main sponsor.

Unlike the Mandated Services Act, he said, the bill requires a strict accounting of funds. The bill was one of the last to be passed in the legislature before the lawmakers recessed for the Easter holiday weekend. They will return Tuesday.

Gov. Malcolm Wilson appeared in the Assembly for ceremonies honoring Charles Henderson of Steuben County, the outgoing president of an organization of veteran assemblymen, and met with New York Mayor Abraham D. Beame.

The meeting produced no agreement, said the participants. Beame asked for an additional $200 million in state aid to help eliminate an anticipated $1.5 billion deficit in his next city budget.

Other bills passed in the legislature during the day would:

—Eliminate the means test for parents in determining the amount of state aid for adopting a handicapped child. The state would pay the child's medical, surgical and psychiatric bills without regard to the financial ability of the adoptive parents. Passed in the Senate and sent to the Assembly.

—Permit court review of decisions by the state education commissioner. Currently, only decisions deemed arbitrary and capricious can be appealed in court. Passed earlier in the Assembly, the measure was approved in the Senate and sent to the governor.

—Provide free or reduced tuition at public colleges for New Yorkers who were prisoners of war in Vietnam or their children. Tuition also would be reduced or free for children of servicemen killed in Vietnam or missing in action. The tuition would be free for those students from families with incomes of less than $5,000 a year. It would be reduced, on a sliding scale, for students from families with annual incomes of $5,000 to $20,000. Passed by the Senate and sent to the Assembly.

—Ban commercial fishing of menhaden in most of Long Island Sound. This would protect the fish for sports fishermen. The measure would be placed on the record. Passed by the Assembly and sent to the Senate.

—Redraw the judicial district boundaries for the election of civil court judges in New York City. Sen. John Calandra, Bronx County Republican chairman, said the measure would help in the election of more Republicans and members of minority groups to the court. Democrats charged that the measure smacked of gerrymandering but were unable to pre-vent Senate passage. It was Nassau County Republicans, were trying to crip off-track betting operations in the county.

—Divide Nassau and Suffolk counties into separate districts for off-track betting operations. Passed in the Assembly and sent to the Senate.

—Permit school districts to lease unneeded school buses during the summer to companies for the transportation of persons from railroad and bus stations to hotels and resorts. Passed in the Assembly and sent to the Senate.

—Require courts to reveal de-

Biggest Drop in Welfare Rolls Since '45

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Department of Social Services, trying to reverse a 14-year growth in the number of persons on welfare, has reduced its rolls by 8.6 per cent, the largest one-year drop since 1945.

The department's annual report, released Thursday night, last reflected a decline in the welfare ranks in 1959 when the nation was working its way out of a brief recession.

On the last day of 1973, the department has 1,630,207 persons collecting public assistance, down 134,817 from the previous year.

Back in 1971, then-Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller faced a mounting welfare caseload that had jumped 250 per cent in 12 years.

The reduced figures can be traced to his decision to impose stricter regulations over the payment system.

Many of those changes were put into effect during 1972, thereby making last year the first full 12-month period under the revised procedures.

A spokesman for the department said that 1959 was the last time the public assistance rolls showed a decline and that increases were recorded in each year until 1973.

The department also reported that the number of reports of child abuse was four times higher last year than in the previous year. The increase was credited to changes in the social services law and a child abuse telephone "hot line" installed last September.

Commissioner Abe Lavine said "The facts and figures contained in this report speak eloquently to the continuing—and accelerating—success of the state's welfare reform initiatives."

He credited the reduced caseload to administrative reforms in determining the eligibility of welfare applicants.

He also praised the results of revised Medicaid programs. Face-to-face recertification interviews were extended to Medicaid and a review program was begun to trim unnecessary institutional care of patients.

Lavine claimed "the congressional ceiling on federal support for social services first enacted in 1972 continued to handicap state and local efforts."

The commissioner noted in the report that because of the new procedures the program's increases were lower than previous years.

The expenditures for the year reached $4,969 billion, an increase of $243 million from the previous year. The 1972 increase over 1971 was $522 million.

Income maintenance for needy persons and families increased $28 million. Medicaid was up $74 million and social services—such as day care and foster care—increased $30 million.

Odd-Even... Weekend Lifting Looms

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Malcolm Wilson is expected to lift the odd-even gasoline sales limit on weekends as a boost to the state's tourist industry, but the state is expected to move carefully in rescinding other parts of the fuel conservation plan.

Informed sources told UPI Thursday that information on fuel allocations for the next four months, requested Thursday from the Federal Energy Office, would be important in reaching any decision on how or when the odd-even plan would be altered.

The governor, reluctant in the first place to impose the fuel sales regulations in February, had been considering the outright abandonment of the odd-even plan.

But, a dramatic increase in motor vehicle traffic in New Jersey since a similar odd-even plan was lifted April 1 has left that decision in doubt for the near future, it was learned.

Some changes in the fuel saving plan are expected to be announced by Wilson within the next few days, however.

Options considered likely to be adopted by the governor included:

—Lifting the plan on weekends.

—Suspension of the two-gallon limit on sales of gasoline in small containers.

—Continuation of the half-tank rule without odd-even sales limit.

Richard W. DeKorte, administrator of New Jersey's energy office, said Thursday that since odd-even rules had been abandoned in his state, traffic on the New Jersey Turnpike and the Garden State Parkway had increased as much as 136 per cent from February levels.

Traffic on the New York Thruway has seen "no real increase" since Dec. 31, energy officials said.

New Jersey's experience with a return to voluntary conservation efforts plus the expected seasonal increases in the use of motor fuel by agriculture and the construction industry have left state officials wary of relaxing any fuel emergency rules.

Officials said despite reallocation efforts, some areas of the state—most notably parts of the Southern Tier—still do not have enough gasoline.

This fact and the relatively small supply of motor fuel allocated to the state for the month have led the governor's advisers to believe that odd-even controls in some form may be with motorists for up to several more weeks.

Representatives of the travel and resort industry have expressed fears to state officials that the gasoline shortage will severely cut into their business this year.

Beame, Wilson Talk Taxes

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—New York City's pressing fiscal problems, which include a budget gap of more than $1 billion, apparently are to be partially solved through higher taxes.

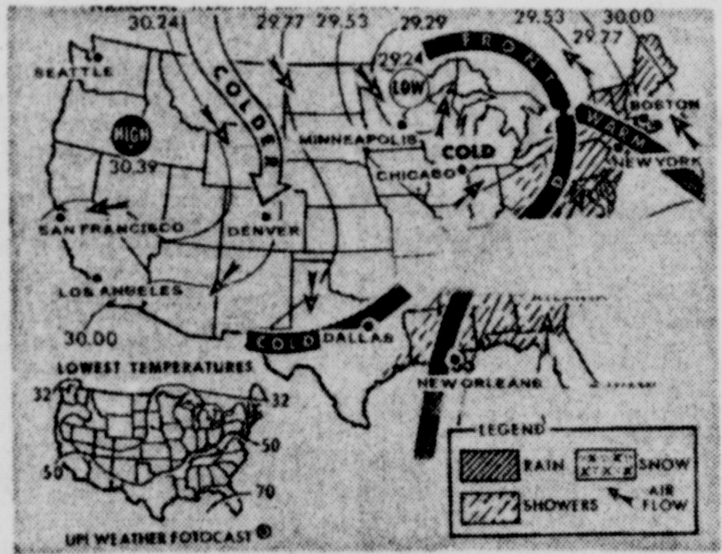

Mayor Abraham D. Beame met with Gov. Malcolm Wilson and top legislative and fiscal leaders Thursday and reported after the session that no agreements had been reached on ways to solve the city's fiscal woes. He said another meeting would be held next Thursday. A variety of possible solutions were discussed at the four-hour session, Beame told newsmen, and those plans included boosts in various taxes which would affect both city residents and visitors.

The Democratic mayor said he pressed again for $200 million in added state aid to help narrow the city's huge deficit and was told by the Republican governor and legislative leaders that the city would be getting at least $67 million more through a boost in state aid to education.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 12, 1974

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger believes he can negotiate an agreement to separate Israeli and Syrian forces on the turbulent Golan Heights. But he has warned President Nixon of the danger that Syria's President Assad might "jump the tracks."

Kissinger's success in arranging a disengagement may determine whether American motorists will have to start lining up again for gas. For Arab leaders have warned that the oil embargo may be reimposed if a Syrian-Israeli settlement falls through.

Kissinger laid the groundwork in Moscow for a settlement by promising to consult with the Soviets. Intelligence reports claim they tried to disrupt the negotiations by encouraging the Syrians to make impossible demands and to open fire on the Golan front.

The Soviets reportedly feared Kissinger was trying to squeeze them out of a Middle East settlement. They are particularly eager, according to intelligence assessments, to retain their influence with Syria and Iraq, which will give them access to the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

During his Kremlin call, Kissinger sought to reassure the Soviets that they will have a voice in any final Middle East peace. He is expected to stop off in Geneva to consult with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko before beginning the next round of talks with the Syrians and Israelis.

Sources close to Kissinger tell us he has cautioned the President that the psychology of the negotiating process sometimes seems to take precedent over the merits of the arguments.

He has reported that President Assad is highly intelligent, with a sharp sense of humor, but unpredictable. The Syrian leader is caught between factions, some of them extremist, according to Kissinger.

He is carefully informing the Egyptians, meanwhile, of every move he is making. He wants them to understand that he has done his best in case the Syrian negotiations break down. His strategy is to keep the peace on the Israeli-Egyptian front no matter what happens with Syria.

CHANGING TIMES: A confidential campaign document, which has been buried in President Nixon's files for more than two years, dramatizes how fortunes have changed.

Today, the President is pleading privately for invitations to campaign for Republican candidates, as evidence that he isn't political poison. But the memo shows that only two years ago he selected what Republicans he would favor with the haughtiness of a dowager queen choosing a ceremonial robe.

In the memo, campaign deputy director Jeb Magruder relayed a message from White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman to Attorney General John Mitchell.

"Haldeman indicated," wrote Magruder, "that the President will not do TV clips for Senators and House candidates, but will do simple written endorsements for these candidates."

As for hopeful GOP newcomers, the President took an even more high-and-mighty view. "The President," Magruder informed Mitchell, "is willing to have his picture taken with incumbent candidates but will not do them for new candidates for the Senate and the House."

FOOTNOTE: Many Republicans in Congress are still grumbling about the treatment they got from Nixon and his campaign committee in 1972. Some of them, ironically, may now sit in judgment of him if his impeachment comes before the House and Senate.

INDIAN WATER: The Pueblo Indians have accused the Justice Department of "throwing" a case concerning Indian water rights in New Mexico. Our own sources at the Bureau of Indian Affairs agree.

The Justice Department is supposed to defend Pueblo rights to Rio Grande water against the state of New Mexico. The Pueblos, survivors of the oldest civilization on the continent, have used the Rio Grande waters for irrigation for centuries.

Over the years, the government and developers have slowly drained away their water rights for non-Indian projects. Their ancient civilization simply will dry up, they contend, if they lose this latest case.

The Pueblos, therefore, brought in a prestigious Albuquerque law firm to review the Justice Department's preparation of the case. In a confidential memo, the firm warned that "the government's case is not prepared for trial."

Furthermore, "if the preparations proceed without change," declared the law firm, "there is a serious possibility that the case will be lost."

FOOTNOTE: A Justice Department spokesman said they had seen the private review prepared by the Albuquerque lawyers. Justice will work with the private lawyers on the case and "will do the best we can," promised the spokesman.

Chance for Health Insurance

The prospects for enactment of national health insurance legislation before year's end are considerably improved by introduction of the Kennedy-Mills bill. For Sen. Edward M. Kennedy this is a retreat, in the spirit of compromise, from a much more sweeping measure offered before. The significance of having Rep. Wilbur D. Mills as a co-sponsor is that, as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, he can do much to assure that the committee now will move away from its position of indifference in this important matter.

One potential fly in the ointment is cause for some anxiety. Organized labor, notably the AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers, helped write the original Kennedy bill and backed it in Congress. Lately they have been counseling delay, evidently in hopes that following next fall's elections labor will be in a better position to push for a bill stronger than either the Kennedy-Mills proposal or that introduced by the administration a few weeks ago.

We think such delay would be most unwise. The administration and Kennedy-Mills approaches are similar enough to serve as the basis for workable compromise. For the first time in a quarter of a century there is an excellent chance of getting badly needed national health insurance legislation enacted into law with a minimum of further delay. The chance should not be missed.

Government Raiders Acquitted

The acquittal of 10 narcotics agents in Alton, Ill., who had invaded six homes in the course of what turned out to be mistaken-identity drug raids forcibly points out that no home is safe from government raiders.

The agents were accused of a series of raids in which they broke without warning into the homes of residents in several southwest Illinois communities. At least one similar raid was reported last year in Rhode Island.

In some incidents the Illinois residents were manhandled, their homes were wrecked, and some were taken into custody. But no drugs were found in the raids and no arrests were made as a result of evidence gathered.

The agents were charged with conspiracy to deprive their mistaken victims of their civil rights. This case also offers proof of the fundamental flaws in trials on charges of conspiracy.

The jurors hearing the case understandably reached their verdict of innocent in response to the federal district judge's instructions that, in order to convict, they would have to find the agents had conspired against the victim's constitutional rights.

The agents in this case can certainly be accused of shoddy police work, but under existing law searches without warrants are permissible if the officers believed contraband drugs were on the premises and about to be destroyed. Searches without warrants are also allowed if agents are in hot pursuit of a suspect or if they were making a lawful arrest.

What should be on trial is the legislation enacted in 1970 by Congress under pressure from an administration crying for "law and order."

There is enough evidence from mistaken raids throughout the country that clearly indicates serious study of these laws. The raids underscore the danger in the existing laws which sanction such abuse of police powers.

Lame Excuse From State

The State Department has offered a lame defense of Ambassador Graham Martin's cable from Saigon urging that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy not be given honest and detailed answers to his questions about aid to South Vietnam. State would have been better advised to hold its official tongue. Nothing is said alters the fact that Martin counseled deception of a United States senator.

It was not the ambassador's intent, a State Department spokesman assures us, to deceive "Congress as a whole." This begs a question. Is it to become accepted policy to allow deception of individual members of Congress on grounds that "Congress as a whole" would be given access to the truth were it only to couch its request suitably? The State Department knows better, and should not have offered this silly rationale in justification of bad advice from a diplomat.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The horrors now afflicting the nation's veterans programs can be traced to the radical plan of the old Haldeman-Ehrlichman White House, officially repudiated but surviving nevertheless, to centralize all power in the Oval Office during President Nixon's second term.

Although H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman are long gone, their grand design endures — administered by spiritual heirs and generally ignored by Watergate-precipitated Washington. The disruptive results are now surfacing in one agency after another. In the Veterans Administration (VA), the political explosion has just begun.

A central feature of the Haldeman-Ehrlichman plan was to place trusted Nixon aides, from the White House and the widely defamed Committee for the Re-election of the President (CREP), in key positions of executive departments. Running the government then would be Haldeman and his staff, backed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) headed by Roy Ash and his deputy, Fred Malek, who had been second-in-command at CREP.

Named by Malek to be White House agent for VA's multi-billion-dollar operations was Frank Naylor, fresh from a stint at CREP rounding up veterans organizations' support for the Nixon-Agnew ticket. Naylor moved in to VA's plush 10th floor executive offices as a supergrade 18 paying $43,926.

Other CREP alumni from the Malek stable moved to lesser VA jobs. Among the many: Michael Bronson, a CREP field representative as assistant administrator for planning and evaluation; Andrew Adams, a Kansas coordinator for CREP as deputy director in VA's now-embattled education division.

What was happening at the VA reflected a radical effort to give the White House total control of all major bureaus and departments. Now, 15 months later, the outcome at the VA is clear: utter disaster.

Naylor, who came to VA without experience in the agency's highly specialized work, has now been quietly shunted to the Farmers Home Administration. Bronson is on his way out. Adams, a polio victim confined to a wheelchair, is slated to run the new rehabilitation office in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (but powerful Congressmen may block that appointment).

This accelerating collapse of the Haldeman-Ehrlichman centralization of power barely begins the story of the VA's crisis.

The American Legion cheered when then Republican Sen. Jack Miller of Iowa (defeated for reelection in 1972) persuaded Mr. Nixon in 1969 to name Don Johnson, a fringe Iowa Republican politician and former national commander of the Legion, to head the VA. Today, however, even the Legion has soured on Johnson's performance running the VA's 171 hospitals, 59 regional offices and tens of thousands of employees.

"Don," said one congressional critic, "is a political primitive who plays everything by the Malek Rulebook." Malek's first rule is saving money. Thus, Johnson's critics complain he automatically overrides his own experts, plus the organized veterans' lobbies, to accept OMB's budget proposals even at the expense of essential veterans' services.

The most dramatic case was the Johnson-contrived ouster last week of Dr. Marc J. Musser, VA's highly regarded chief medical director. In a private letter April 3 to Rep. Olin Teague, chairman of the House Veterans Committee, and Sen. Alan Cranston, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on veterans health and hospitals, Musser said that "an antagonistic and uncooperative administrator (Johnson)" made his job impossible and that "the infiltration of the department by personnel selected and appointed by the administrator has virtually eliminated any possibility of functional integrity" in the medical branch.

When Musser came under attack by Johnson's office last year, then presidential counselor Melvin Laird interceded. Laird wrung from Johnson a firm agreement to stop interfering with Musser's operations.

More significant, Mr. Nixon himself strongly indicated to Teague last December that Musser would stay. Now, with the President preoccupied with fighting impeachment and with Laird gone, Musser has been hounded out of office.

Musser's top deputy, Dr. Benjamin F. Wells, was also forced out. Wells told us Johnson "just could not stand" Wells's connections with powerful congressional Democrats.

By throwing its full weight behind Johnson, OMB retains draconian control over VA's budget. The cost is high: loss of support from the powerful veterans' lobby, from tens of thousands of Vietnam veterans, and administrative chaos in the VA. Such is one bitter after-taste of the Haldeman-Ehrlichman blueprint for power.

Chaos in the VA

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The Evil Genie in the Bottle

Mack is a big man. He sipped morning coffee and I said, "Can I mix a drink for you before I shower?" He patted a grin on his kisser. "You do that," he said, "and I'll make a parking lot out of your house in 10 minutes."

He's an alcoholic. I forgot. As a member of Alcoholics Anonymous he is rousted from bed before dawn to lift drunks from alien gutters and sober them with interminable conversation. He reminded me that I had written the first biography of an alcoholic, William Wayne Wister, in 1945. It was called "The Glass Crutch."

The deep research taught me a great deal. The chronic drunk is not weak-willed; he's sick. A minimum of 7 million American men and women are alikes. If each takes only 10 extra days off per year, American industry is losing over $4 billion.

He also causes half of all automobile accidents. His foot is heavy, his eyes blurred, his mind serene as he crosses a divider and takes a few innocent people with him on the journey to eternity.

In a family, the only thing he inspires is fear. Children hide under bedclothes. Wives (or husbands) dread facing up to one more confrontation. The voices are loud, the drunk falls back on old accusations. If these fail, he will throw a few punches, and the children emerge from their warm beds whimpering.

Wister told me that he needed four drinks every morning to emerge from the dark cellar of his thoughts to the ground floor where humans live. If four made him feel normal, he was sure that eight would transmute him to a super human. It didn't, although he kept trying for 19 years.

The biggest block to making productive (and content) humans of sick ones is to get them to admit that they are alcoholics. "Oh," they say,

"I'll admit I get plastered now and then. Sometimes I even draw a blank. From now on, I'm gonna count them. A few won't hurt."

A few will kill any alcoholic, because a few suppresses all inhibitions and the drinker stops counting. It's an old aphorism now, but Bill Wister was the first, to my knowledge, to say, "for the heavy drinker, one is too many and a hundred are not enough."

We used to pick up drunks dead in snowdrifts on the Boverly. This was the last stop for the judge, clerks, cops, salesmen, executives and all the bright men with a future who lay stiff and seedy with nothing but a past.

Almost all of the alcoholics I know do not want to discuss it. We serve liquor in our house because the cocktail has become the badge of welcome. "Gentlemen, what'll it be?" The first two drinks soften the cold start in the faces.

Mark Hellinger drank a fifth of brandy a day. I never saw him stagger, never heard him slur a sentence. He died at the ripe old age of 44 years, 9 months. Senator Tom Hennings would disappear, phone his anguished wife, and say, "If you want to find me, I'm at the top of Washington Monument."

Congressman Mendel Rivers, governors beyond counting, superior novelists and historians were crushed by booze. Those who wanted to live, men like Walter O'Keefe and Dana Andrews, swallowed dust and said, "I am an alcoholic," until they meant it.

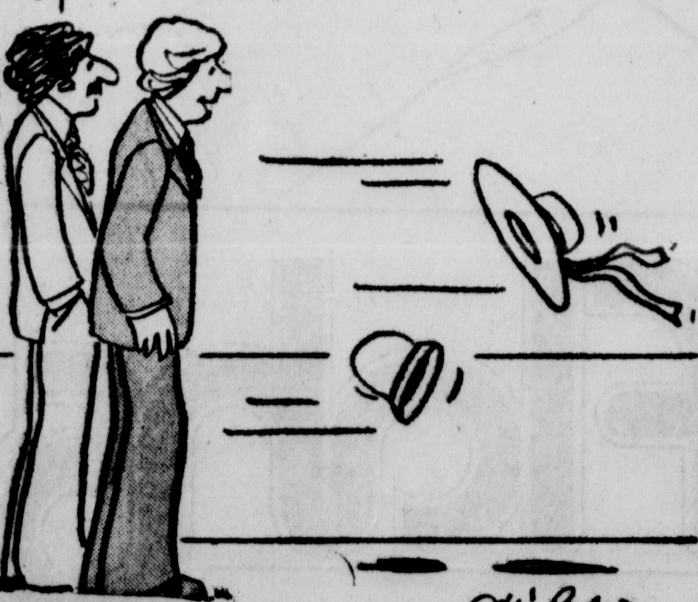

The tragic aspect of this disease is that help is no further away than the telephone. No matter how much credit is heaped on A.A., it is not enough. Part of the 12 steps of A.A. is to be willing — even eager — to get out of bed and run to the rescue of those who require help at once.

To save himself, the alcoholic must save others. This is a proliferating flower in a bed of weeds. He works hard preaching sobriety and learns to accept abuse without striking back. It's a tough life, but a highly productive one.

The deepest wound to the alcoholic is to learn that he has friends who can drink. He can't. Women alcoholics avoid this humiliation by drinking before guests arrive, then sipping cautiously in the presence of "witnesses."

Sometimes I think that men relate drinking to machismo. To concede that they are ill is a form of self-emasculation. This is difficult surgery. Another mistake is believing that Alcoholics Anonymous is a collection of dried-out bums. It's a cross-section of brave men and women who know that there is no cure, but that the longer they keep the cork in the bottle, the easier it is to keep the evil genie inside...

TOWN OF ULSTER Sawkill Road near Route 28 presented a petition calling for help in determining the source of salt that has appeared in their drinking water supplies, saying they believed it was coming from calcium chloride stockpiled by the Thruway Authority near the Kingston exit.

The board passed a resolution authorizing Sabino to forward the petition to state legislators, asking for their help in clearing up the problem. Hugo Dachenhausen Jr., a Ruby fire commissioner, in behalf of the Ruby Fire Company asked the town to assist in construction of its new firehouse by allowing town highway equipment to be used.

The board voted to permit Highway Superintendent Edgar Elliot to furnish dump trucks and other equipment to help out on days when inclement weather prevents normal highway work.

Elliott was authorized to advertise for bids for a blacktop spreader for the highway department and the board approved bids of Onteora Asphalt Inc. for several classes of bituminous material for highway paving work. The Onteora bids were the lowest of two received. Hubert Winnie of Hurley was given approval for a 58-unit trailer park in the Creek Locks area near the Rosendale town line. The board voted final approval for 13 spaces and preliminary approval for the other 45, subject to Winnie getting the necessary permits from the Ulster County Board of Health, the Department of Environmental Conservation, and other regulatory agencies.

Higher Courts Uphold Duryea...

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Appellate Division of state Supreme Court Thursday upheld a lower-court ruling throwing out Election Law charges against Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea, it was announced.

The Suffolk County Republican, two other GOP assemblymen and three aides had been accused of participating in an alleged scheme to support Liberty party Assembly candidates with campaign literature in 1972 in order to drain away potential Democratic votes. The charges were misdemeanors.

State Supreme Court Justice Burton B. Roberts ruled Jan. 24 that the section of the Election Law under which the group was indicted was unconstitutional because it was too broad.

The Manhattan district attorney's office appealed that decision, which has now been affirmed by the appeals court in Manhattan.

In a statement distributed here by a Duryea spokesman, the Assembly speaker said he was "extremely pleased by the unanimous concurrence of the Appellate Division in upholding the decision of Justice Roberts."

"I am additionally gratified that the position we took in this matter has been sustained," Duryea said in the brief statement.

The section under which he was indicted requires that the source be identified on any political literature.

Roberts held that because the statute prohibited the dissemination of anonymous campaign literature it was an unconstitutional abridgement of the right to free speech.

The others whose charges were dismissed last December were Assembly Majority Leader John E. Kingston of Nassau County, Assemblyman Alfred A. Dellibovi of Queens, Assembly Communications Director James Threatte and Duryea aides Henry Mund and I. Lynn Mueller.

The group had also been charged with conspiracy in allegedly planning the vote-siphoning operation.

...Blind Teacher In Poughkeepsie

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — An Appeals court Thursday ordered the reinstatement of Poughkeepsie schoolteacher Bruce Bevan, suspended from his job last year because of blindness.

The Appellate Division of state Supreme Court upheld a lower-court ruling reinstating Bevan with back pay for the 1972-73 school year. The ruling also directed that a hearing be conducted on the Poughkeepsie school board's attempts to force his retirement.

An attorney for the school board said no decision had been made on whether to appeal to the state Court of Appeals.

Bevan, 39, became blind in 1970 because of chronic diabetes. A tenure sixth-grade teacher with eight years' experience, he received extended sick leave with pay until September 1972, when he tried to resume teaching but was refused by the board.

The board terminated his sick leave and applied to the state Teachers Retirement System for his compulsory retirement last February.

State Supreme Court Justice Harold J. Hughes Jr. of Kingston ruled last July, however, that Bevan should be reinstated, and the school board appealed the decision to the Appellate Division.

School board attorney Joseph D. Quinn Jr. has said that the board would prove at any hearing on Bevan's retirement that his blindness made him incapable of carrying out some teaching duties.

Bevan told a reporter he would have no immediate comment on the decision.

Powell Lane Fire Doused

TOWN OF ULSTER — A fire of undetermined origin damaged a two-story frame house on Powell Lane in the Town of Ulster early Thursday night.

According to Sawkill Fire Chief Fred Parker, a liquid propane gas leak may have caused the fire. He said the occupants of the house escaped safely.

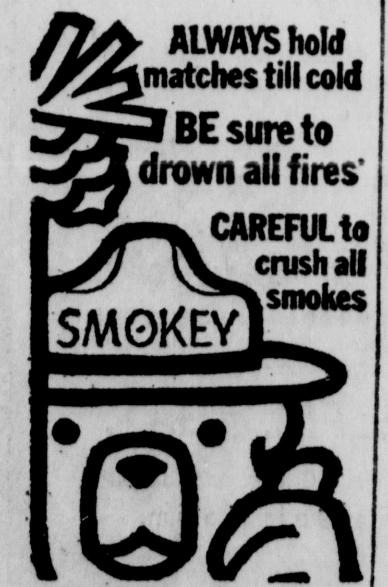

Sixteen volunteers were at the scene from 6:30 to 8:40 p.m. Thursday. The fire damaged the rear wall of the house, which is located off the Sawkill Road behind the Gateway Diner.

N. Dutchess Club Reports Activities

Members of the Northern Dutchess Hospital Mothers' Club had a three-fold program in April. Guest speaker for the occasion was Mrs. Alberta Larsen, supervisor of nursing at the hospital; the club voted to donate a Power Pack Unit for the hospital's portable isolette; and artwork by students at Chancellor Livingston School in Rhinebeck, will be displayed by the Club in the hospital's Pediatric Ward.

Topic covered by Mrs. Larsen was "The Asthmatic Child."

Also on the agenda for the Club will be the Annual Arts and Crafts Show, September 21 and 22 at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds.

Members will conduct a vision-hearing screening for children entering kindergarten in September. This program will take place on April 25 at the Mill Road School in Red Hook from 9 to 12 a.m. and 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Members of the Mothers' Club will be assisting the school nurse. A similar screening is also scheduled for May 29 and 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Chancellor Livingston School.

Plans are underway to hold the Club's annual rummage sale on May 9-11 at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds and donations for this function are still being accepted.

The Northern Dutchess Hospital Mothers' Club will meet again on Monday, May 6.

Abby Says: Sex Is No Way to Keep a Boyfriend!

DEAR ABBY: I'm 21, considered attractive with a good personality. My problem is rather embarrassing, but I think there is something wrong with me.

When I meet a guy I like, right away I get sexually involved with him. In fact, going to bed with him is the only thing on my mind.

Naturally, no guy is going to turn anything down, but my sexual involvement never seems to accomplish what I hope it will. The longest a guy has ever gone with me is two months. They all give me a big rush at first and then they quit calling. Is it possible they get tired of sex? I know I'm too forward, but I just can't help it. I don't think I'm a nymphomaniac because I don't get all that much out of sex. Could I be oversexed?

How can I keep from falling head over heels in love with guys I barely know? I can't seem to help myself. I'm always getting hurt.

Do I have a problem? And how do I solve it?

PUSHOVER
DEAR PUSHOVER: You have a problem, and you can solve it by getting to know yourself and understanding why you behave as you do. You're insecure and searching for a lasting relationship, and you believe that the way to keep a guy coming back is by giving him sex. Wrong!

(Obviously.) A good therapist is the answer. Ask your family doctor to recommend one. Or call your Family Service Association.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I stopped at a gasoline station. She told the attendant she wanted $2 worth of gas and she held up two fingers.

The attendant left, and for some reason another man came out and put the gas in my mother's tank. He said: "That will be $3."

My mother said she asked for only $2 worth so the second man said: "Look, lady, what's another dollar? Besides with this gas shortage, you're lucky."

My mother said all she had

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

was $2, but she lived only a few blocks away (which was true) so she would go home and get another dollar.

My mother didn't have any money at home so she never went back because what could she have given him?

What should she have done?

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: She should have told the man she would bring him the dollar as soon as she had it. And then she should have kept her word.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both dieting. We were invited to spend the weekend with some close relatives of mine. When I accepted, I expressly asked my aunt to please keep the food simple, and not to bake because we were dieting. She agreed.

When we got there she had pumpkin bread, fudge brownies, cheesecake and all the things we love and couldn't resist.

Because we are good friends, I spoke up and said I wished she hadn't done all that, especially since I had asked her not to. It caused hurt feelings.

Now the family says that it's up to the dieters to resist temptation because others should not have to go without. We say when houseguests ask the hostess not to serve high calorie foods she should comply. What do you think?

CALORIE COUNTER
DEAR COUNTER: Your aunt agreed to comply with your wishes, and she broke her promise. Shame on auntie. If she felt you were being unfair to the other guests by requesting she limit her menu to low-calorie food, she should have said so.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

Lions Club Benefit

On April 19, 20 and 21 Denise Dance Studio will present a benefit performance for the Highland Lions Club Medical Procurement Fund. The program will be given at the Highland High School auditorium on Pancake Hollow Road, Highland. Denise Dance Studio will present a Broadway oriented show. Numbers will be performed from such Broadway hits as: My Fair Lady; Gypsy; Damn Yankees; King and I; Flower Drum Song; Sound of Music; Jesus Christ Superstar; Oliver!; No, No, Nanette; Funny Girl; Mame; Gigi; West Side Story.

Hair Care
Hair that is washed daily needs special attention to keep it from drying out and splitting even though you wash to get rid of oil and dirt. Use a rinse after each washing and give yourself a conditioning treatment once a month using a thick cream conditioner. This is important particularly in winter when the air is dry and filled with electricity.

Needlework Show

MRS. OLGA HANSEN, who teaches at the Millbrook Needlework Guild, will be celebrating her 10th anniversary with the organization when it gives a needlework show Tuesday through Thursday, April 23-25 in the Millbrook firehouse. The Guild, organized by Mrs. Darryl Parshall, is non-profit. Mrs. Hansen is pictured here with a chair seat she is completing in cooperation with Mrs. Parshall. When completed, it will be used in the Eleanor and Franklin Room in Blair House, Washington, D. C.

It has been announced to the Women's Department at The Daily Freeman that a needlework show will be held in the Millbrook Firehouse Tuesday through Thursday, April 23-25. It will be sponsored by the Millbrook Needlework Guild and Mrs. Darryl Parshall.

The show will mark Mrs. Olga Hansen's 10th anniversary year with the Guild as teacher.

A native of Denmark, Mrs. Hansen studied weaving, embroidery, dressmaking and home economics in grammar school and in a girls' boarding school during her early teens. She continued her studies at an evening school supported by the government.

After qualifying on her entrance examination, Mrs. Hansen studied and was graduated from the Danish Handcraft Guild School in Copenhagen. She taught privately for three years and in 1964 accepted a teaching position with the Millbrook Needlework Guild, owned and operated by Mrs. Parshall. The Guild is located on Franklin Avenue in Millbrook.

Mrs. Parshall, who is honorary chairman of the Embroidery Guild of America, founded the Needlecraft Guild in New York City. Her interest in handwork and her own ability in the craft inspired her to organize the non-profit Millbrook Guild in 1954. When Mrs. Hansen joined the organization, she followed an illustrious line of teachers from England — Erica Wilson, Gillian MacKenzie and Sheila Small.

The needlework show at the firehouse will be open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. From all indications, it will be an outstanding exhibit of canvas and crewel embroidery, count thread on even weave linen and needlepoint and cross stitch rugs made by many women under the guidance of Mrs. Hansen. The show is intended to be an opportunity to see some outstanding works.

Another note of interest, Mrs. Parshall and Mrs. Hansen have teamed their talents and are now working on a chair set for the Eleanor and Franklin Room in Blair House, Washington, D.C.

Fashion Tips

Don't Bare All

A slinky bare look can be ruined with a show of underwear — make sure your bra doesn't show under arms, at shoulders or behind your back.

Snow and Rain

Don't wear your best light-colored pants when it snows or rains — you may drag cuffs through slush or kick water up the back while walking.

High Boots

Ankle and calf-high boots are best kept under slacks and not worn with light-colored stockings and knee-length skirts. Best height is right below the knee worn with dark stockings.

Hair Length

Newest length hair is short but soft with bangs and feather-cut sides, and back brushed up and off the face.

Diet Sense

Weight comes off at about the same rate as it goes on. Any good diet takes time and a balanced diet.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE
DIRTY DIAMONDS ARE A JEWELER'S BEST FRIEND!

Dear Heloise:

To keep your diamonds and stone jewelry sparkling, try a soft toothbrush and ordinary toothpaste and very gently brush the jewelry carefully, rinsing in warm water. (Be sure to stopper the sink.)

Marie F.

Dear Heloise:

I was always fussing about toilet brushes making marks on the bowl, the handle breaking and bristles collapsing all too soon, until I found the answer.

A dishwasher brush is fabulous. It has a small raised-up portion on the end which is perfect for getting into that hard-to-clean rim.

Try it — you'll see! And when the brush gets soiled, just soak it in bleach to clean.

Mrs. Geo. Wells

Dear Heloise:

It seems so many of the stores you go into have a table of those wrapped, loose candies in a wide assortment.

When I send parcels through the mail, I use them to fill the box instead of crumpled paper.

It is a little surprise for the receiver and it is perfect for the job!

Mrs. Blum

Dear Heloise:

I planted some cucumbers in our vegetable garden.

I started them indoors for a month and they were pretty tall. The day after I planted them outside, they were drooping.

I put a straw into the ground beside each one and tied the cucumber to the straw. The cucumber plants are doing fine now and the straws make my garden really colorful.

Anne

Dear Heloise:

My mother wanted me to tell you about my way of defrosting meat. On busy wash days, I put the meat on top of my clothes drier.

Why waste all that heat?

Judy

Dear Heloise:

I help my Mom prepare vegetables for freezing. It's a slow job scooping them out of boiling water with a strainer, but one day I had a brainstorm.

I bought a French fry basket (saucepan-type) and this made the job so much faster and easier.

Ruth Sadler

Dear Heloise:

I found an easy way to rid the shredded foam I use for stuffing pillows, of all its "activity."

I used anti-static fabric softener, the kind you spray directly into your clothes dryer. I sprayed it right into the bag of foam before starting to work with it.

Mrs. Victor Mowry

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

BUILD A SIMPLE SOLAR SHOWER

While leading scientists and politicians agonize over the "feasibility" of using solar energy "sometime in the future," a growing number of do-it-yourselfers are going ahead and harnessing Ole Sol right now.

One of the simplest of these sunshine-powered devices we've seen was put together a couple of summers ago by Idaho's Mike Oehler. It's a solar water heater that you can duplicate in just a few minutes for less than ten bucks.

Get 100 feet of black (black absorbs the most heat) plastic hose, coil it up in a loose pile and cover it with a small sheet of clear polyethylene. One end of the hose attaches to your water supply, of course, and the other goes to an outdoor shower. To increase the amount of heated water on hand at any given time, add extra lengths of black hose to the coiled pile. And if you want to make your setup more permanent, substitute some old glass windows for the polyethylene sheeting used in the solar collector.

Mike says his rig supplies him with all the hot water he wants until October... even away up there in the wilds of Idaho.

Holy Week Busy Time For Pope

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The current Easter season is likely to be the most taxing for aging Pope Paul VI since he succeeded to the papal throne nearly 11 years ago.

Seldom is a Roman Catholic pontiff busier with ceremonial events than during Holy Week, which began with Palm Sunday Mass in St. Peter's Basilica and ends this Sunday with the traditional Easter morning Mass in St. Peter's Square and the semiannual Urbi et Orbi (To the City and the World) message and blessing.

Last month, the 76-year-old spiritual leader of more than 600 million Roman Catholics was bedridden with influenza, then suffered a mild relapse when he tried to resume his work schedule too quickly.

Although he is said to have recovered, the Pope has decided to skip two of his five scheduled Holy Week appearances, an afternoon service today and a three-hour Easter Eve rite in St. Peter's Basilica.

Vatican sources said doctors recommended cancellations because the Pope was still weak from antibiotics given to combat the influenza and that chronic arthritis also was giving him some trouble.

Doctors also wanted the pontiff to cancel another engagement, a Way of the Cross procession at the Colosseum tonight at which he is to carry a six-foot cross, the sources said. The Pope refused, not wanting to disappoint television viewers in numerous countries.

Still on the Pope's schedule, in addition to the procession, were the Easter Sunday Mass in St. Peter's and Holy Thursday's Mass in the Basilica of St. John in Lateran, the Pope's "Parish Church," where he acted in his capacity as Bishop of Rome.

If the Palm Sunday weather repeats itself, St. Peter's Square will be awash with sunshine, tourists and pilgrims on Easter Sunday.

More than 100,000 persons usually jam the square to watch the Pope officiate outdoor mass at 11 a.m. and give sacraments to persons representing all continents and races.

Then Paul re-enters the Basilica and at noon appears on its central balcony to proclaim that "Jesus Christ is risen." His Urbi et Orbi message, which he also delivers at Christmas, will probably have a world peace theme, Vatican sources said. After his message the Pontiff reads Easter greetings in a dozen languages.

The crowd applauds and shouts "Viva il Papa" (Long Live the Pope) and bands strike up the Vatican and Italian national anthems.

Balloons painted like Easter eggs float into the sky and the huge carillon atop St. Peter's peals a happy Easter to all of Rome.

Election Law Revisions Cause 'Controversy'

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Two influential citizens groups are currently at odds over proposed election law revisions hailed as "necessary" by one side and condemned as "unconstitutional" by the other.

The League of Women Voters of New York State Wednesday put its support behind a proposal that would impose stricter campaign regulations and create a new agency to oversee election procedures. The New York Civil Liberties Union, however, claimed the plan was "unquestionably unconstitutional."

The proposal was swiftly approved last week in the Assembly, where it was co-sponsored by the top Republican and Democratic leaders, Speaker Perry B. Duryea and Minority Leader Stanley Steingut. Several similar proposals are also on the Senate docket and Gov. Malcolm Wilson is expected to offer his own version shortly.

Taking a slap at the secretary of state's office, Mrs. Ruth Robbins, league president, said there has been "inadequate" enforcement of election laws in previous years. "Our past experience with the secretary of state's office has been pretty dismal," she said.

Kenneth P. Norwick, an Albany lobbyist for the civil liberties group, charged that "unrestrained zeal for reform has so far produced an impressive array of unconstitutional bills."

Claiming the proposals collide with the first amendment rights of free speech and association, Norwick predicted that "if enacted, they will be struck down by the courts."

"Every reform carries with it new abuses," Norwick said. "If it was an excess of zeal that produced Watergate in the first place, we should be careful to avoid similar excess in our desire to avoid future Watergates."

The league came out in support of a constitutional amendment that would allow public financing of political campaigns. Such contributions are now forbidden under the state constitution.

Hurley Zoning Proposals Take Aim at Trailer Parks

By CARL GRAHAM

The Hurley Zoning Board of Appeals has called for sweeping changes in the town's zoning laws.

Chairman Harold Graff and ZBA members Thursday night drafted a letter to be sent to Supervisor Raymond "Jake" Croswell and the town board, who had asked for their recommendations on updating the zoning laws.

"The A zone (open residence, one-acre minimum lots) is much too large and unrestricted," the ZBA document said. "It could become infected with mobile homes."

The board recommended that the entire section dealing with trailers be rewritten. "We are not obligated to take in half of the trailers in Ulster County, only our fair share," they said.

Limitations on trailers and trailer parks occupied most of the board's recommendations. Specific measures called for include minimum lot sizes of 12,500 square feet, minimum trailer park sizes of five acres, and a limit on the number of trailer parks.

"This is not too much in view of the poor drainage in most of our town," ZBA members noted.

They pointed out that the town already has four trailer parks "with a hundred gripes to go with them" and that there are many other single trailers scattered throughout the town. About 80 per cent of the town is zoned open residence, which permits trailers, they noted.

Other recommendations put forth by the ZBA:

• All public buildings should require a special use permit.

• A new zoning map, about twice the size of the present one, with zones marked in clearly defined colors.

• Light industry should be permitted along the entire length of Route 28.

"If the planning board can come up with a better solution, Lord bless them and let's do it," the board report stated.

The board granted a special use permit to William Oehler that will permit him to build a trailer park on Schildknecht Road across from Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

David Fox, who lives on Schildknecht Road near the Lodge, objected to granting the permit, saying that "sewage and water problems could be a total disaster to the area."

Fox said that an 800-foot well proposed by Oehler for the trailer park would pull water from other wells in the area, saying that when Oehler fills his swimming pool from his present well it causes water to disappear from some other nearby wells.

Fox also claimed that heavy shale in the area would prevent sewage from the park from draining off properly and could cause contamination of other water supplies in the area. He asked that Oehler be required to dye test both his water supply and sewage disposal facilities before a permit is approved.

Oehler's plans call for 48 trailer lots, each 100 by 90 feet, located in a rectangular area west of the Lodge. In a written memorandum submitted to the board, Fox maintained that "this concentrated source of garbage and rubbish could overwhelm the existing town dump" and asked if the town had considered the problem.

Graff pointed out that the Hurley Planning Board also must approve the project and said "If there are problems, they will investigate."

Town Okays Referendum

By WADE BURKHART

The Lloyd Town Board moved to hold a referendum of the town's voters on the siting of a power plant in the township, at its meeting Thursday night.

No date was set for the referendum. Councilman David Murphy said it would be "as soon as we can get the mechanics (of the referendum) in shape." Supervisor Jon Decker indicated that could be "another couple of weeks."

The referendum, according to Decker, would be an "informal, non-binding referendum." He said before the town board took a stand on a power plant "we would want to get the feelings of the townspeople, in so far as possible, on this particular topic."

Lloyd is being considered for the siting of an atomic power plant by the state Atomic and Space Development Authority (ASDA). ASDA has also recently said conventionally-fueled plants might be considered for the Lloyd site.

The town board's Power Plant Advisory Committee voted earlier this month to recommend to the town board that no power plants of any kind be located in Lloyd. That recommendation was formally received by town board Thursday night, and taken under advisement.

Decker said the advisory committee was not yet through with its work, still having to compile a full report among other things.

For the town to hold a regular binding referendum, with all the legal trappings and expense, it needs a reason specified by state law. Decker said he said he had consulted both the Association of Towns and the Department of Audit and Control.

Sampling public opinion is not a legally specified reason, but Decker said he believed after consultation that the town could hold its informal referendum, with all the voting being done in the town hall and volunteers serving as poll officials.

He said the results of the referendum could "weigh very heavily" in the town board's decision on a power plant stand.

In related action, Decker reported that he had sent a letter on behalf of the town to Albany, urging "prompt and positive action" on the so-called "Lane amendment" presently in Assembly committee, which would give local governments veto power over the siting of power plants in their municipalities.

Decker reported town crews were still working on the rockslide on Oaks Road, which cut off both the road and the railroad track which parallels it Wednesday night and isolated 13 families. "It's a real mess," he said. Cleaning the mess up required both town and contracted crews and equipment, and Decker said it would probably put the town over its budget for the year for road repair.

A special meeting will be held April 15 with the people in the proposed sidewalk district. Murphy disagreed with former Supervisor Louis Foscaldi, who said the district is in existence.

See 45 PC Hike In Paltz Taxes

NEW PALTZ — The proposed 1974-1975 budget for the Village of New Paltz would raise village taxes by about 45 per cent, with $359,344.20 to be raised by local property taxes on a budget totalling $805,739.20.

The budget was submitted to a public hearing this week, and got a rough going over from local residents concerned about the tax rate the proposed new budget carries. The proposed tax rate for 1974-75 is $22.30 per thousand of assessed valuation, up from the present tax rate of $15.26 per thousand. Last year's budget was for $633,516.

Mayor Henry W. DuBois said Thursday that the village board would be holding further sessions on the budget before adoption, and he "expected" that cuts in it would be made. He said he had some areas in mind for cutting, but declined to say what they were. The mayor said he anticipated final action on the budget to take place at the board's regular monthly meeting April 29.

One point raised by village residents is the amount of money the proposed budget would put into the clerk-treasurer's office. Wilbur Fredenburgh, who recently stepped down after 29 years as village clerk-treasurer, got $4,600 for 1973-74, and his wife Bessie, who has also retired as deputy clerk-treasurer, got $4,400. The budget proposal is to pay their replacements a total of more than twice as much.

According to the proposed 1974-75 budget, Clerk-Treasurer Robert I. Remsnyder would receive $13,500, and his deputy, Mrs. Joan Staats, $7,500.

DuBois said Thursday the reason for increasing the combined salaries from $9,000 to $21,000 was because the position would now be full-time. "Wilbur Fredenburgh has been burdened," said DuBois, "he was trying to do too much."

It is also proposed to give the mayor and trustees a healthy boost in salary. The mayor's position, now carrying a $1,800 salary, would be paid $3,000. The trustee positions would be paid $2,000, instead of the present $1,200. DuBois said the raises were "long overdue."

The village has several heavy capital expenditures either underway or planned, including the expansion of the Village Hall, and the Fulton Road extension — costing $300,000, and these have greatly increased the village's debt service; it is proposed that the village spend $50,000 more, or over $63,000, in the coming fiscal year.

The village also faces big increases in employee benefits and salaries, which are pushing up the cost of a number of budget areas.

Fuel Czar Simon Set for Treasury

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is expected shortly, possibly today, to nominate energy chief William E. Simon to succeed George P. Shultz as treasury secretary. Simon will be replaced as federal energy administrator by his deputy, John Sawhill, an administration source predicted. The White House announced March 14 that Shultz would resign sometime early in May. Simon, who kept his title as deputy secretary of treasury while he ran the administration's energy program, was Shultz's personal choice as his successor, sources said.

A former Wall Street investment banker, Simon, 46, set up the fuel allocation program to combat the energy shortage and organized a rationing system for use if the shortage worsened.

Using a highly personalized style, Simon created a national image for himself as the nation's "energy czar."

Farms, 11 of which belong to the Wickmans who maintain a permanent home at 170 Albany Avenue. Edward Feldmann manages the farm for the Wickmans, thus the name, Feldwick. (Freeman photo by Carey)

Ecology Fair Set for April 28

Both the Albany headquarters and New Paltz regional office of the Department of Environmental Conservation will take part in the Environmental Fair to be held April 28 at the Town of Ulster Garage off Lucas Avenue extension.

The Albany office will exhibit its experimental pollution-free car, the state's auto emissions testing van, and a "stack tester" used to measure air pollution.

The regional office will illustrate the department's functions and offer the public first-hand contact with the agency. The fair, entitled "Rites of Spring," is being sponsored by the Ulster County Environmental Management Council. It will be held from noon to 5 p.m.

The fair is one of the first projects undertaken by the County, which is chaired by Mrs. Shirley Kobran. The Council advises the Ulster County Legislature on solid waste management, water and air quality, educational programs, and other environmental matters. DEC works with councils across the state, furnishing technical assistance and 50 percent of the funds needed to carry on their programs.

Among the exhibits will be a model of the solar heated building to be built at the Carey Arboretum in Millbrook; a water pollution theme demonstrat-

Chlorine Shortage Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agencies have been working on new government study shows that scores of American cities are having trouble getting enough chlorine for water and sewage treatment, with the likelihood of an even worse problem this summer.

The shortage, in part an offshoot of the energy crisis, is also affecting other water treatment chemicals such as soda ash and chemicals used for fluoridation, according to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

It said the chlorine shortage could be particularly troublesome this summer because of heavy seasonal demands for electricity — a prime ingredient in the manufacture of the chemical.

In addition to the electricity problems the shortage has been aggravated by a growing industrial use which has helped outstrip production, as well as transportation problems and a scarcity of chlorine containers. The EPA said it and state agencies have been working on voluntary ways to assure adequate supplies for city water supplies, but a spokesman said a mandatory allocation program — pending in Congress — may still be necessary. The agency said it believes it will be early 1975 before the shortage eases.

The EPA study showed that a total of 74 cities experienced shortages of chlorine or other water treatment chemicals during the eight months ending Jan. 31 of this year. Of those, 22 cities ran completely out of chlorine for sewage treatment at one time or another and 26 others were short during the period of sufficient supplies for the same purpose.

Cities which ran out of chlorine for wastewater treatment at one time or another were: Binghamton-Johnson City, N. Y.; Borough of Florence, N. J.; Corinna, Maine; Dallas; Des Moines; Glens Falls, N.Y.; Greenville, Tenn.; Houston; Jacksonville, Ill.; Jefferson Parish, La.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Kings Park, N.Y.; Mattabassett Sanitary District, Conn.; Monticello, Ill.; Nashville, Tenn.; New York City; Orno, Maine; Plattsburgh, N.Y.; Rangeley, Maine; Scotia, N.Y.; Smithtown, N.Y.; and St. Joseph's Resort, Ill.

Nicklaus... Close at Hand

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The Masters leaders read more like who's that than who's who, but Jack Nicklaus is right where you'd expect him to be—close at hand.

The pacesetter, going into today's second round, is a stumpy Kansan named Jim Colbert, who is relatively unknown despite having won three tournaments in nine years on the PGA tour.

The three runnerups—Hubert Green, Hale Irwin and Don Iverson—are pretty much in the same boat. Green still has trouble getting people to spell his name correctly. Even though he won the Bob Hope Classic and at Jacksonville earlier this year, people kept mistaking him for Bert Greene, also in this tournament.

Colbert, who has won less than $14,000 so far this year, closed strong in Thursday's opening round to post a 5-under-par 67, the first time he had broken par in three Masters appearances.

Green, Irwin and Iverson all had 68s, with Irwin getting his by running off a string of five straight birdies on the back nine of the sun-swept Augusta National Course.

But all four had to be uneasy. Nicklaus, four-time champion and pre-tournament favorite, was only two strokes off the pace—and that's because he missed a number of the sort of putts he usually makes with ease.

"Early in the round, I wasn't aggressive enough with my putting," said Nicklaus. "I missed some silly little putts. But, I would have been satisfied with my round if I hadn't bogeyed 18 (where he missed a 12-footer)."

Nicklaus made it clear he expects conditions to favor him over those ahead of him the next three days.

"If the greens speed up, as expected, it will favor the better more experienced players," said Nicklaus. And, who fits that bill more than he?

Colbert, delighted last year to make the cut here, said he felt playing in two previous Masters helps his chances this time.

"When I came here this year, I felt I had served my apprenticeship," he said. The 32-year-old Colbert had six birdies and only one bogey in Thursday's round. But he felt the birdies at Nos. 12 and 13 were the key to his round.

"I could very easily have thrown the entire round away on those two holes," sighed Colbert with relief. "Getting out of trouble like I did made the round."

At the par three 12th, Colbert overshot the green and thought he might be in water. But the ball halted on the crest and a 25-foot chip shot went in the hole.

He had to come through a clump of trees at the par five 13th after nearly going into water again.

"I made one terrible shot and three super shots at 13," said Colbert, who added that he considered it a thrill whenever he shot a 67 "even in practice."

Ray Floyd, Gene Littler, Dan Sikes and Frank Beard—all better known than the leaders—were tied with Nicklaus at 3 under par. Billy Casper and Art Wall, a pair of veteran former champions, were in a group at 70 and Gary Player, only a foreigner ever to win the Masters (1961), and Tom Weiskopf were in another group at 71 as 21 out of 78 starters broke par.

The 50-year-old Wall, who won here back in 1959, picked up four strokes in three holes with a birdie-eagle-birdie streak, becoming the first man ever to put three deuces back to back in Masters' play.

Sam Snead, who admits he'll be 62 next month, shot an even par 72 and was furious at himself for missing five putts under eight feet. "It's the same old thing," fumed Snead, a three-time Masters champion.

He won the Masters 15 years ago, which has brought him a measure of prestige he still enjoys, but what pleases him as much, if not more, is that his bygone victory keeps earning him an annual invitation back here.

Art Wall doesn't fool himself. He's 50 now and he's aware the natural aging process prevents him from hitting the ball as far and straight consistently as he did 15, 10 or even five years ago.

Locked inside him is the disquieting knowledge he makes errors now on the course he never used to make. They are the same kind of mental ones Arnold Palmer, Julius Boros and Sam Snead also make when fatigue chips away at their reflex actions, but like the three of them, however, Art Wall frequently rubs out those errors with plain, old-fashioned desire.

He makes sure to bring a little extra helping with him everytime he comes back here. Somehow he has it in the back of his mind the people who run the Masters wouldn't appreciate him hacking around the course.

Maybe Art Wall is right about this feeling he has, but whether he is or not, the best way he knows of to guard against it is to play the very best he can here.

He was the 27th player in the Masters' field of 78 in Thursday's opening round, playing together with 18-year-old Gary Koch of Temple Terrace, Fla., who was making his first appearance in the event.

Wall put his white wooden tee in the ground on the first hole and wasn't at all surprised to find the same familiar fluttering in the pit of his stomach he has encountered in all past 16 times he has played here.

He straightened up, looked toward the top of the hill where he hoped to place his ball, took his customary one practice swing and let go.

No good. His ball strayed toward the sand trap on the right. Worse yet, the ball landed in it.

Wall's shot out of the trap was more trouble. He bladed the ball and hit a little boy in the gallery, a 13-year-old by the name of Bobby Voelker. When Wall reached the boy, he found him crying, more in panic than in pain.

Fortunately, the ball had struck the boy on the fleshy part of his right leg. When Wall saw he had done no real damage, he was relieved. He fished three balls out of his bag and gave them to the boy.

The kid beamed. Art Wall had a private little talk with himself before making his next shot.

"... Settle down. Don't let this upset you..." He took a bogey 5 on the first hole and nullified that with a birdie on the second. He parred the third, then put a two-iron shot on the green, 40 feet from the hole, on the par three

"You've got to make those on his putting and added that fellow pro Bruce Crampton helped him with a putting lesson on Monday."

Arnold Palmer, still the darling of the Masters' gallery even though his game is fading at 44, shot a 4-over-par 76 and defended champion Tommy Aaron, who has not played well since winning here last year, was another stroke back at 77.

Colbert said that if he didn't think he could win the Masters he'd "pack up and leave here right now." He admitted that his play prior to this week has been "mediocre," but blamed that on something big. Wall knew it was an extraordinary shot.

He could tell it in his innards. He watched the ball until he couldn't see it anymore because it disappeared into the contour of the green. Seconds later, though, there was a tremendous roar, and Art Wall, with 25 years on the tour, immediately knew what it meant.

He holed out. A Eagle two. When he came to the green, there were more cheers and he acknowledged them, smiling at the time.

Wall moved on to the next hole, the par three sixth, where he chose a four iron first, then went to a five iron and laid his tee shot within four feet of the hole—pin high.

"... If I can only sink this one. Imagine, three 2's in a row. Why, it would be like old times, wouldn't it?"

Art Wall didn't take an uncommon amount of time lining up his putt. He never really does.

When he was ready though, he brought the blade back and stroked the ball toward the hole. Plop! It fell in.

"... Three 2's! I don't ever remember doing anything like this before in my life..."

Wall finished the front nine in a four-under 32 and, coming back, he played more like the way he has been lately and had a two-over 38 for a 70.

Not bad when you consider Jim Colbert, the first round leader, had a 67, Jack Nicklaus a 69, and Tommy Aaron, the defending champ, a 77.

Art Wall has made only $2,500 in official money this year. He makes errors now and then, but compensates for them with his desire.

Especially here where he remembers what it was like in the old times.

Pistons Even Series

Scot: 'Bulls Are Choking'

DETROIT (AP) — "When the playoffs began," Detroit Pistons Coach Ray Scott said with a touch of irritation in his voice, "Chicago was talking like they would sweep right through to the championship."

"They completely ignored us like we were a piece of cake," he continued. "Now they're choking."

Detroit refused to die Thursday night, getting a magnificent second half from Bob Lanier. The Pistons clawed and scratched to a 92-88 victory before a Cobo Arena crowd of 11,134.

The triumph tied the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal playoff series at 3-3 heading into Saturday's nationally televised game in Chicago. The winner will meet the Milwaukee Bucks for the West title.

Scott, named NBA Coach of the Year earlier Thursday, said the honor "felt good" but Thursday night's triumph "felt great."

It was a typically bruising battle between the Midwest Division rivals, but Chicago suffered the most with injuries to center Cliff Ray and guards Jerry Sloan and Norm Van Lier.

Ray, who helped hold Lanier to just four points in the first half, injured a knee, Sloan injured a foot and Van Lier sprained an ankle.

The Bulls surged to an 18-5 lead in the first eight minutes before Detroit began rallying. The Pistons outscored Chicago 25-19 in the second quarter and pulled within 41-40 by halftime.

Then Lanier, the 6-foot-11 center, came alive after intermission. He hit 10 points in the third period and 14 in the fourth, finishing with 28 before fouling out with 1:06 left.

Chet Walker led Chicago with 33 points. Dave Bing tallied 22 points for the Pistons.

Chicago, which never has gotten past the first round of the playoffs in six previous tries, outbounded Detroit overall 50-42.

There will be two playoff games tonight in the NBA—both Eastern Conference semifinals.

The New York Knicks and Capital Bullets, deadlocked at 3-3, will play the seventh and deciding game of their series at New York's Madison Square Garden, and the Boston Celtics, leading Buffalo 3-2, will face the Braves in Buffalo. If the Celtics and Braves need a seventh game, it will be Sunday at Boston.

In the American Basketball Association tonight, the San Antonio Spurs and defending champion Indiana Pacers will meet at Indiana in the seventh and final game of their West Division semifinal series, with the winner to oppose the Utah Stars, semifinal conquerors of the San Diego Conquistadors, in the final.

The ABA East Division final, between the New York Nets and Kentucky Colonels, begins Saturday night at Uniondale, N.Y.

Tigers' Coleman: A Forgotten Man

By United Press International

Public recognition keeps eluding Joe Coleman.

Over the last three years there have been few pitchers as effective as the 27-year-old Coleman, yet the Detroit Tigers' right-hander gets nowhere near the publicity given other prominent American League hurlers like Mickey Lolich, Jim Palmer, Catfish Hunter or Nolan Ryan.

For example, during the last three seasons Coleman has won 62 games, which is only one less than Lolich, Palmer and Hunter and 12 more than Ryan. Yet, despite these impressive statistics, Coleman remains a forgotten man in the eyes of most of the baseball public.

Coleman had a spectacular chance to lose that stigma and gain instant national acclaim Thursday when he came within five outs of pitching the first no-hitter by a Detroit pitcher in Tiger Stadium since 1952. But, alas, he was forced to settle for a two-hitter as he pitched the Tigers to a 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

The last Tiger pitcher to toss a no-hitter in Tiger Stadium was Virgil Trucks on May 15, 1952, against Washington, and Coleman lost his chance with one out in the eighth when light-hitting Gene Michael slapped a 3-2 pitch up the middle for a single. Coleman even lost his shutout in the ninth when Roy White hit a leadoff homer for the Yankees' only other hit.

Coleman wasn't that upset about losing the no-hitter, however.

"Ah, no-hitters usually bring bad luck with them," he quipped. "I had a 1.2 count on Michael, then gave him a forkball, fastball, forkball—all high. I had to come in with a fastball on 3-2 and you have to give him credit because he hit it."

Coleman, besting Mel Stottlemyre while evening his record at 1-1, was aided by a two-run homer by Mickey Stanley as the Tigers handed the Yankees their first loss of the season after four victories.

In other American League games, Milwaukee edged Cleveland 7-6, Baltimore nipped Boston 7-6 in 11 innings, California whipped Texas 11-8 and Minnesota and Chicago played to a 4-4 tie in a game that was called after six innings because of rain.

Brewers 7, Indians 6

John Briggs drove in three runs with a single and a homer as the Brewers handed the Indians their fifth straight defeat. Jim Colborn, who won 20 games for Milwaukee last season, was hit hard for a second straight time and knocked out of the game in the first inning, but Jerry Bell turned in 6 2-3 innings of one-run relief to get the victory.

Orioles 7, Red Sox 6

Second baseman Doug Griffin's throwing error on a potential double play, ball allowed Ellie Hendricks to score the winning run in the 11th inning. The Red Sox had tied the game in the last of the 10th at 6-6 on Juan Beniquez' home run, but Hendricks singled to open the Orioles' 11th, moved to second, when Rich Coggins walked and scored when Griffin botched the relay portion of a routine double play grounder.

Angels 11, Rangers 8

Lee Stanton, Frank Robinson and Mike Epstein paced a 15-hit attack with home runs as the Angels posted their fourth win in five games. Bill Singer, a 20-game winner last year, went 2-3 in his first win since his first win of the season.

Twins 4, White Sox 4

Bobby Darwin drove in three of Minnesota's runs with a triple and a single and Ron Santo drove in a pair of runs for the White Sox before the rain made the field unplayable. The game will count toward individual player records but will be replayed in its entirety at a later date.

Philadelphia Phillies edged the Chicago Cubs 4-3 on Tommy Hutton's two-run pinch homer in the ninth. San Francisco and Cincinnati had the day off.

The Cardinals began their assault on Seaver, the NL's 1973 Cy Young Award winner, in the second inning on Ken Reitz' solo homer. Joe Torre connected in the third with one man aboard and Lou Brock socked a three-run shot in the third.

Expos 5, Pirates 1

Willie Davis drove in the first run with a sacrifice fly while Ron Fairly drove in two with a double and single.

"My breaking ball had to be sharp because you just can't rear back and throw against the Pirates," Rogers said. "They have the best hitters over-all in baseball. You can't zero in on any one man so you have to bear down all the time."

Astros 9, Padres 1

Two-run doubles by Cesar Ceno and Bob Watson helped Houston score six times in the second inning and hand the winless Padres their sixth consecutive setback. Watson also hit a solo homer.

Earlier, Padres owner Ray Kroc apologized to the team for remarks Tuesday night when he went on the stadium public address system and charged them with playing "stupid" baseball.

Braves 6, Dodgers 4

Aaron drilled his 716th career home run in the seventh inning, snapping a tie. Mike Lum had homered to tie the score earlier in the inning. Aaron has three home runs for the year—his only hits. He is batting only .187.

"Three hits, three home runs," he mused. "That's better than no hits. You can't knock it. It felt good. It means something because we beat the heck out of these guys who have been doing it to us for so long. I've forgotten about 714 and 715 already. You can't rest on that."

Phillies 4, Cubs 3

Hutton's pinch two-run homer off Horacio Pina followed a one-out walk to Willie Montanez. Vic Harris drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in a three-run Chicago fourth, giving the Cubs a 3-2 lead.

Seaver, Gibson Learn How Other Half Lives

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver and Bob Gibson, used to moving down opposing batters with relative ease, are learning how the other half lives. As far as Steve Rogers is concerned, though, there isn't any other half.

Seaver and Gibson hooked up in the opener of a doubleheader Thursday and neither was around at the finish. The St. Louis Cardinals rocked Seaver for six runs on 10 hits in five innings, including three homers, while Gibson, unable to hold a 6-0 lead, was chased in the seventh by the New York Mets.

However, the Cardinals rallied for two runs in the eighth and an 8-7 victory. They completed a sweep by taking the nightcap 4-3 with a pair of runs in the ninth.

Meanwhile, Rogers, baseball's latest pitching prodigy, made his 1974 debut and hurled the Montreal Expos past the winless Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1, allowing six hits and an unearned run. Rogers made 17 starts after coming up from the minors last August and pitched well in all of them—a 10-5 record and 1.54 earned run average.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Houston Astros walloped the hapless San Diego Padres 9-1. Hank Aaron hit home run No. 716 in the Atlanta Braves' 6-4 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Philadelphia Phillies edged the Chicago Cubs 4-3 on Tommy Hutton's two-run pinch homer in the ninth. San Francisco and Cincinnati had the day off.

Rangers Missed Rousseau

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Rousseau's sore hip apparently holds the key to the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoff series between the New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens.

At least, that's Ranger General Manager Coach Emile Francis' opinion and doesn't surprise if Yvan Cournoyer agrees.

Rousseau was on the sidelines Thursday night and Cournoyer took advantage of his absence, scoring three goals in Montreal's 4-1 victory that tied the best-of-seven series at 1-1. Game three is scheduled for New York Saturday night.

In Wednesday's opening game — won by the Rangers — Rousseau did an expert defensive job on Cournoyer, limiting the Montreal speedster to two shots at goalie Ed Giacomin. With Rousseau watching game two from the stands, Cournoyer fired seven shots at Giacomin. The difference was obvious.

"Rousseau was able to cover Cournoyer," said Francis. "Tonight we didn't have anybody that could."

That leaves the question of who will draw the assignment in the third game. "Rousseau will play Saturday," said Francis, a touch of hope in his voice.

Rousseau had attempted to play Thursday: "I tried it in the warmup," he said. "But it just wouldn't work."

Frederic of his defensive shadow, Cournoyer cruised. In the second period, he converted his first breakaway and then added two more less than three minutes apart in the third.

"You've got to be lucky to get three goals," said the speedster, who scored 40 of them during the regular season and was the Most Valuable Player in the playoffs last season.

Cournoyer and the Canadiens were lucky — and good — on his first goal. The score was 1-1 late in the second period when Montreal goalie Banny Larocque made a sharp save and Pierre Bouchard batted the rebound high into the air and out towards center ice.

Suddenly, Cournoyer was on the puck in a flash and zoomed in on Giacomin for the tie-breaking goal.

"Whoever batted that puck," suggested Francis, "ought to be playing for the Montreal Expos instead of the Canadiens."

In the third period, Cournoyer was back again, twice converting setups from Jacques Lemaire. "They were two good passes," said Cournoyer. "Jacques is a good hockey player and I need him out there."

your side. And, the Rangers might add, not having somebody to keep up with him.

In the other quarterfinal series Thursday night, Boston beat Toronto 6-3, Chicago beat Los Angeles 4-1 and Philadelphia blitzed Atlanta 5-1.

In each case, the winning team gained a 2-0 advantage in its respective series.

Philadelphia will be at Atlanta in tonight's only action with the other three series resuming Saturday night for game No. 3. In these, Chicago will be at Los Angeles, Boston at Toronto and Montreal at New York.

League scoring champion Phil Esposito and Bobby Schumacher each had a goal and two assists in leading the Bruins to their second consecutive victory over Toronto.

Toronto hung close, trailing only 4-3 entering the final period, but Esposito scored at 7:34 and Gregg Shepard closed it out with an empty net goal in the final minute.

Hawks 4, Kings 1
Veteran Stan Mikita scored the winning goal for Chicago with less than two minutes remaining in the second period and became the seventh player in modern Stanley Cup history to score 50 goals. His point total of 130 is also the third highest in playoff competition, behind Jean Beliveau and Gordie Howe.

Braves 6, Dodgers 4
League scoring champion Phil Esposito and Bobby Schumacher each had a goal and

"I didn't even know about the points or the goal," Mikita said. "I knew I had quite a few but I didn't know how many and I thought there were several others with 50."

Dick Redmond, Dennis Hull and Jim Papin also scored for Chicago while Bob Nevin got the lone King goal.

Flyers 5, Flames 1
Rick MacLeish equalled a playoff record by scoring three goals in the second period as Philadelphia easily handled the Flames.

"I yelled a couple times tonight for the puck to Ross (Lonsberry) and Joe (Watson)," MacLeish said in describing his goals.

UCCC Nine Beaten, 20-1

STATEN ISLAND with 13 hits and five UCCC errors, staked the winners to three big innings that buried the Ulster County College baseball team Thursday.

SI got rolling in the second with a five-run burst that chased starter Bob Marz. Five bases on balls and a pair of hits tagged Marz with the defeat and put the Dolphins out of reach.

Craig Wrosten, Mark Landers, Bob Cook and Alan Cocks all took a turn at climbing the mound for Ulster, but none could adjust to throwing down at the plate. Staten Island poured it on with six runs in the fourth inning off four hits, including two triples, and two walks.

Ulster got on the scoreboard in the top of the sixth. Island batters, and that, along with the Senators host Nassau CC.

The Nassau game has been relocated to the Hudson River State Hospital field since a schedule change by New Paltz State usurped the Senators' usual "home" field.

Ulster opens its Mid Hudson Conference campaign today against Dutchess Community College with a doubleheader.

Hypertension . . . Treatment Lead

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — New studies on rats suggest a possible lead toward prevention and cure of "essential" hypertension, the most puzzling and by far the commonest form of high blood pressure.

Hypertension constitutes one of the nation's major health problems because it can lead to fatal heart disease and cerebral strokes.

"Essential" hypertension means high blood pressure of unknown cause. It is distinguished from high blood pressure arising from certain other conditions, such as kidney disease. About 19 million of the 23 million Americans who suffer from hypertension are afflicted with the "essential" type.

The prevailing theory points to changes in the automatic nervous system and certain glandular systems as the cause of "essential" hypertension.

But two researchers say their studies with four types of hypertensive rats indicate that "essential" hypertension may be caused instead by a metabolic defect in the smooth muscle of blood vessel walls.

M. Sarmir Amer and Gordon R. McKinney revealed the results of their studies today at the 58th annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The two said their work at the Mead-Johnson laboratories in Evansville, Ind., indicated the suspected biochemical blood vessel defect could lead to a whole new approach to treatment of high blood pressure. Doctors could prescribe drugs for treating the blood vessel defect rather than simply for lowering the blood pressure, they said.

Dr. Arthur Hayes Jr., head of hypertension research at Pennsylvania State Medical College at Hershey, Pa., pointed out that present drug treatment for "essential" hypertension is based on the nervous system-glandular concept. He explained it is designed only to lower the blood pressure without getting at any specific mechanism that might be triggering the hypertension itself.

"We often have to use multiple drugs with a high incidence of dangerous or annoying side effects," he said.

Printer 'Slowdown' Banned at The Times

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Manhattan Supreme Court justice Thursday directed the president of Typographical Union No. 6 to abide by an injunction issued last fall that bars "slowdown" job actions by the union at the New York Times.

Justice Harold Baer met privately with representatives of both the union and the Times for about an hour, then ordered the union chief, Bertram A. Powers, to obey the injunction issued last Oct. 15 by Justice Vincent A. Massi.

Powers and union lawyer John J. Sheehan earlier argued that the injunction, under which the union was enjoined from staging job actions and the old contract's terms were extended until some other action was taken by either side or agreement reached, was no longer valid.

Baer also postponed action on a Times request to hold the union in contempt for staging a 90-minute "chapel meeting" during working hours Wednesday afternoon.

The Times said it received a telegram Thursday from the parent International Typographical Union which declared the old contract with the Times was "no longer in full force or effect."

Printers at the Times, the Daily News and the New York Post, whose previous contract ran out March 30, 1973, voted overwhelmingly earlier this week to authorize their leaders to take a strike.

Powers said he received a telegram Thursday from the parent International Typographical Union which declared the old contract with the Times was "no longer in full force or effect."

Child Injured In T-Way Crash

TOWN OF ROSENDALE — An 11-year-old Connecticut girl is in serious condition at Kingston Hospital after the car her father was driving smashed into the rear of a tractor-trailer truck on he New York State Thruway Thursday afternoon.

The incident occurred in the southbound lane about 10 miles south of Kingston at 2:30 p.m., according to Thruway state police.

Injured in the mishap was Michelle Rainville of Stamford, Conn. Police said she sustained severe lacerations of the head and face.

Police said her father, 37-year-old Thomas J. Rainville, tried unsuccessfully to avoid striking the truck on the long uphill grade. Both Rainville and truckdriver Arthur Sikora, 44, of Tonawanda, escaped injury, troopers said.

Missing Plane Search Pressed Around Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — An air-sea search was pressed today for a twin-engine tour plane which vanished with 11 persons aboard.

The Coast Guard said the plane carried a pilot, identified as Vincent E. Morine, and five couples who had been staying at the Iliaki and Reef hotels in Honolulu. The passengers' identities were withheld.

The plane was one of eight which left the Keahole Airport in Kona on the island of Hawaii Thursday. The other seven landed at the Kahului Airport on Maui.

Search planes flew over the rugged terrain near the Hawaii Volcanoes National Park on the big island, where a private pilot reported sighting wreckage. After a closer look, however, he was unable to confirm the report.

Coast Guard planes and cutters along with Air Force craft also searched the ocean channel between Hawaii and Maui.

All eight planes had been leased by the Panorama Air Tour Co.

Esopus Slates Spring Cleanup

TOWN OF ESOPUS — The Town of Esopus will conduct its annual Springtime cleanup drive April 15 through 19.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday (April 15, 16 and 17), town highway department crews will collect roadside refuse in Port Ewen, Saugerties and Connelly, as well as along New Salem Road to Route 213.

On Thursday and Friday (April 18 and 19) the remaining portions of the town, including St. Remy, Union Center, Ulster Park, West Park and Rifton, will be covered.

Residents should leave their collectible refuse along the roadsides during those days.

Youth Board Sets Meeting

KINGSTON — Members of the Ulster County Youth Board Organizational Committee are urged to attend a meeting on Wednesday, April 17, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting, to be held in the board room of the Statewide Savings and Loan Bank, 267 Wall Street, Kingston, will reveal work done by the committee and consider suggestions for future operations.

"The committee's work is approaching a critical stage," officers said in urging all members to attend the meeting.

The Youth Board is making a catalogue of all youth-serving agencies and programs in the county to determine problems confronting youth and how they might be helped. The board coordinates all youth agency work and provides matching funds for public, private or religious agencies with deserving programs.

All Ulster County residents interested in youth are urged to attend the meeting and express their views.

Condition Unchanged

Six-year-old Joseph Hinchey of 68 Livingston Street, Saugerties, remains in poor condition today in the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital after he was struck by a car Wednesday in Saugerties. The youngster suffered severe internal injuries in the mishap.

Kiwanis Get Library Report

KINGSTON — The importance of the Kingston City Library and the many varied services which it now offers to the public was the subject of a talk and motion picture presented before the Kingston Kiwanis Club by Patrick Botino, a trustee of the library.

The amount of research material available at the local library, the help given by the library personnel, and the cost of the operation of the facility were touched upon by Trustee Botino. He also indicated that the current question of suitable quarters for the library, which has outgrown its present housing, has not been settled but is under advisement by the Board of Trustees. Botino stated that it would probably be "a couple of months before any decision on a site for the library could be reached."

Present at the Kiwanis meeting were the most recent group to become citizens of the United States locally. The service club has a custom of inviting new citizens to be the guests of the Kiwanis at the regular luncheon. Arrangements for the new citizens were made by Kiwanians Hubert Hoderath and Stanley Hankinson.

Nixon Proceeds With Plans for Moscow Summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, postponing a showdown with the Watergate impeachment panel, turned his attention today to his forthcoming summit meeting in Moscow in June.

He has scheduled a meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to continue talks on plans for his third summit conference with Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev.

Nixon discussed the June visit with Soviet President Nicolai Podgorny at a breakfast meeting in Paris Sunday, when he attended memorial services for the late French President, Georges Pompidou.

He also hopes to consult with Gromyko on the U.S. desire to wrap up a new strategic arms agreement (SALT II) with the Soviet Union. Negotiations have been stalemated on plans for a future pact for both sides to limit strategic nuclear weapons.

Early in the afternoon, the Chief Executive arranged to fly to Key Biscayne, Fla., with members of his family for an extended holiday weekend. He is expected to huddle with key aides on strategy for dealing with the House Judiciary Committee's subpoena for 41 of his taped conversations relating to Watergate.

There were indications that Nixon and his top aides were surprised at the committee's overwhelming vote — 33 to 3 — in favor of a subpoena.

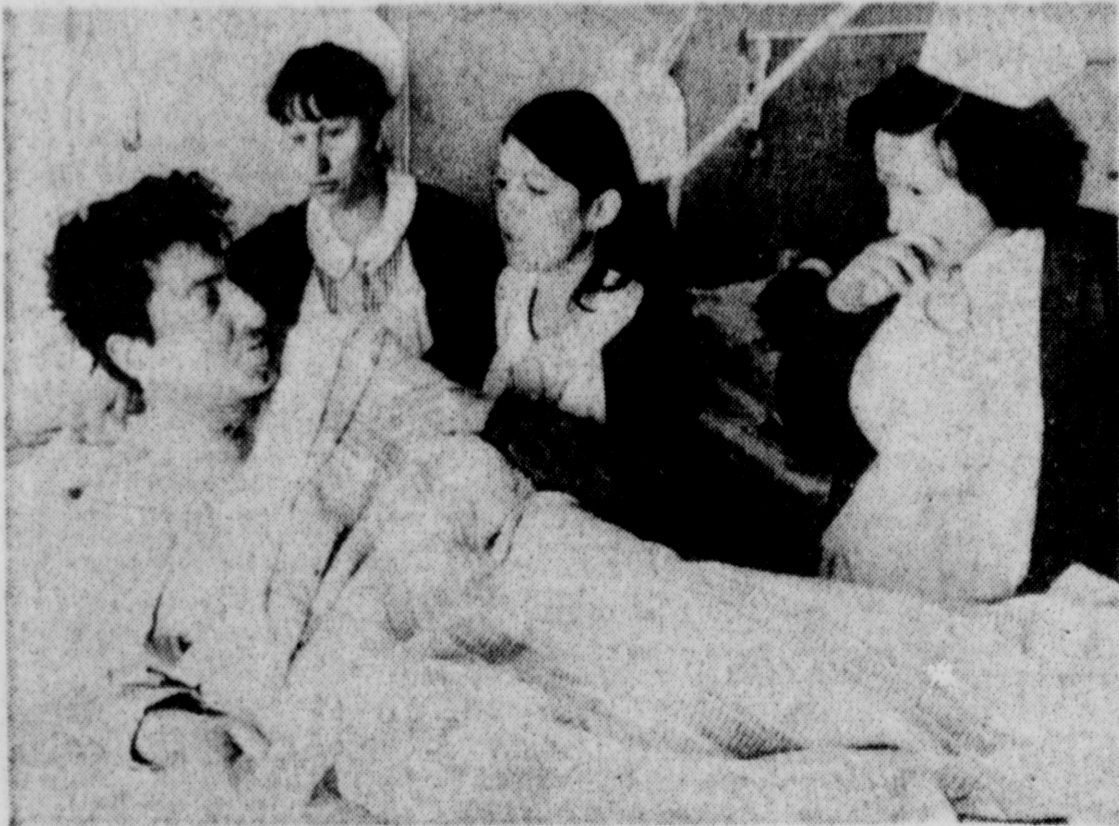

Political observers read the vote as a hardening of the impeachment panel's position in view of Nixon's hesitation to hand over tapes first requested last February.

In a session with reporters Thursday, Presidential Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler declined to say whether Nixon would fully comply with the subpoena by the April 25 deadline.

Instead, he said, the White House will provide a "comprehensive and conclusive" answer to the subpoena when Congress returns from its Easter vacation around April 22.

Both Ziegler and Gen. Alexander Haig, White House chief of staff, also hinted that Nixon was preparing a statement regarding Watergate which he believes will prove his innocence in the political scandals.

Israel Blames Lebanon

By United Press International

Israelis gathered to bury their dead beneath the brush-covered hills of the Galilee today and angrily blamed neighboring Lebanon for the Arab guerrilla slaying of 18 men, women and children at the town of Qiryat Shmona.

"The Lebanese government must know that we regard it and its citizens who are aiding the terrorists responsible for the massacre," Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said.

Lebanese Premier Takiaddin Solh, fearing retaliation, met in Beirut with envoys of the United States, Soviet Union, China, France and Britain to warn of "aggressive intentions" by Israel.

Thursday but agreed to stay on until her successor was picked, the Knesset (parliament) the attack was "assassination for assassination's sake."

Information Minister Shimon Peres said Israel "shall not hesitate to take the urgent measures necessary, both for our defense and to prevent murderous attacks."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoa lodged a formal protest at the United Nations, calling the attack a "barbaric atrocity."

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said he "deeply deplores the tragic incident" and said such attacks could undermine Middle East peace efforts.

Another French Candidate

PARIS (UPI) — Communications Minister Jean Royer Thursday night became the third Gaullist candidate in France's presidential race, further weakening the divided conservative opposition to leftist Francois Mitterrand.

Royer, champion of France's 1 million shopkeepers, joined the campaigning for the May 5 presidential election promising a "new style of action."

The entrance of Royer in the contest marked the third major change in the line-up of candidates for the post since President Georges Pompidou died of bone cancer last week.

National Assembly President Edgar Faure and Prime Minister Pierre Messmer jumped in and out, leading a national radio commentator to say, "everytime it looks like the race has finally taken its definite shape, somebody else throws a monkey wrench in the works."

Politicians said Royer's candidacy would take votes away from the two other Gaullist contenders — Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing and former Prime Minister Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

The politicians said, however, the new candidate might also take votes from Mitterrand, secretary general of the Socialist party and choice of a wide range of leftist groups, including the Communists.

Royer, 53, a national legislator and mayor of the city of Tours, said he was resigning as communications minister to campaign for president.

Opinion polls have shown Mitterrand leading Giscard d'Estaing and Chaban Delmas, but failing to get the necessary majority needed for a first-round victory.

The two top finishers would meet in a May 19 runoff election if none of the candidates gets more than 50 per cent of the vote in the initial balloting.

Royer, commerce minister under Pompidou's predecessor, the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle, won the support of France's shopkeepers by restricting the building of supermarkets and discount centers across the nation.

A three-man guerrilla squad, which Israel said came from Lebanon, ran through two apartment buildings in the northern Galilee town Thursday morning, killing residents who answered knocks on their doors.

Three townsmen, five women, eight children and two soldiers were slain by bazooka, submachine gun and grenade fire. Sixteen other Israelis were wounded.

The guerrillas died in a blast of explosives after holding off Israeli troops for 4½ hours from a fourth floor apartment in the town of 18,000 persons a mile-and-a-half from the Lebanese border.

A small commando group calling itself the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine General Command said it staged the raid in a bid to free 100 guerrillas from Israeli jails.

The assault came a year and a day after Israeli commandos gunned down three top Palestinian guerrilla leaders in their Beirut homes in retaliation for terrorist attacks.

Mrs. Meir, who resigned

Thursday but agreed to stay on until her successor was picked, the Knesset (parliament) the attack was "assassination for assassination's sake."

Information Minister Shimon Peres said Israel "shall not hesitate to take the urgent measures necessary, both for our defense and to prevent murderous attacks."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoa lodged a formal protest at the United Nations, calling the attack a "barbaric atrocity."

Outpost Near Saigon Shelled

SAIGON (UPI) — The Saigon command lost contact today with a government outpost north of the capital after a massive Communist mortar barrage, military sources reported.

The sources said the radio at the besieged Tong Le Chan ranger camp, 60 miles from Saigon near the Cambodian border, went dead during the morning following a 900-round mortar attack by Communist gunners.

Military sources said the 4½-hour shelling against the 400-men outpost Thursday night was believed to be the most intense in South Vietnam since the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire accord was signed.

The camp had earlier reported its antennas damaged by the shelling, but it was not immediately known whether the radio went dead because of mechanical failure or a Communist ground attack.

Military sources said government spotter planes flew over the camp early today, but were unable to contact the defenders.

The base, surrounded by Communist forces since Feb.

26, 1973, had reported 14 defenders wounded in the shelling before the radio went dead.

In other fighting, military sources reported 125 Communists killed Thursday night during an attack against a government armored unit 15 miles southwest of Pleiku, the major city in the Central Highlands.

The sources said four government soldiers were killed, eight wounded and eight missing in the fighting 220 miles north of Saigon.

In Cambodia, government warplanes stepped up air strikes against insurgent forces north of Phnom Penh, sinking two large boats carrying reinforcements to Oudong, a former royal capital seized by rebels March 28.

Field reports said government fighter-bombers hit the boats on the Tonic Sap River near Kompong Luong, the beachhead for the government's drive to recapture Oudong, 18 miles north of Phnom Penh.

On the ground, Cambodian troops reported killing 115 rebels in three battles south of Phnom Penh. The military command said six government soldiers were killed and 26 wounded in the fighting.

A command spokesman said the battles took place at Kampot, 93 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, Prey Veng, 74 miles southeast of the capital and Kompong Tram, 18 miles southwest of the city.

Thursday but agreed to stay on until her successor was picked, the Knesset (parliament) the attack was "assassination for assassination's sake."
